CLUBMAN IS SHOT TO DEATH

PHILADELPHIA, April 6.—Craige Lippincott, a prominent society and club man, was mysteriously shot to death at his home, No. 218 West Rittenhouse square, today. The police immediately commenced an investigation on the theory of suicide. Before the news of Mr. Lippincott's death had become public, a report at the coroner's office said that a maid had committed suicide at the house.

Mr. Lippincott, who is a millionaire, was born in Philadelphia in 1846. He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania. In 1868, he entered the publishing house of the J. B. Lippincott Company of which his father was president. In 1886 he succeeded his father as president. Mr. Lippincott also was a director in the Farmers and Mechanics Bank and in the Pennsylvania Society for Insurance on Lives and for Granting Annuities. He was a member of the Society of Mayflower Descendants and of the Art, Union League, Rittenhouse and Racquet Clubs. He is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Sallie E. Bucknell of this city, a daughter, Mrs. Samuel K. Reeves and a son, Jay D. Lippincott of Colorado Springs, and a brother, J. Bertram Lippincott.

Deputy Coroner Keever, who had been interviewing members of the family, said he believed the case to be one of suicide.

"Mr. Lippincott was shot sometime between 7 and 8 o'clock this morning," said Keever. "His valet, Oscar Stewart, found the body when he went to shave Mr. Lippincott. The body, half dressed, was lying upon the floor. There was a hole in the right temple and nearby lay a revolver.

"J. B. Lippincott, a son of the dead man, has made a sworn statement giving it as his belief that his father's death was the result of an accident."

Mr. Lippincott was related to the Craig, Drexel and Biddle families of Philadelphia.

After a thorough investigation the police decided that Mr. Lippincott committed suicide and this view was also accepted by Coroner Ford. An inquest will be held. No explanation for the act has been offered by the family.

$75,000 FIRE IN BACK BAY

A three-alarm fire, attended by many spectacular features and thrilling escapes, destroyed nearly all of the interior of the six-story brick building at Nos. 90 and 92 Stanhope street, located next to the Back Bay station of the Boston & Albany Railroad, early today.

The building was occupied by the White-Smith Publishing Company, publishers of music.

A score of people in the building, ten of whom were girls, got out through the roof to adjoining buildings.

Flames Leap Across Tracks.

The flames leaped sixty feet in great tongues, flashing across the three tracks of the Boston & Albany railroad and holding up several incoming and outgoing trains.

The fire started shortly after 8 o'clock and was under control in about three quarters of an hour. The damage is estimated to be about $75,000.

The fire started, it is believed, on the third floor. Just how it originated could not be learned. Only a score of the many persons employed in the structure had gone to work. But they had to make a dash for their lives because of the inflammable material in the building. There was a flash of flame, and in a few minutes the whole structure was a roaring furnace. John Leonard, an employe of the company, sent in an alarm. As soon as the firemen reached the scene they realized that it would take instant, aggressive and skilful work to confine the flames to the one structure.

Excitement In Hotel.

The flames shot out of the windows and were followed with great sheets of smoke. The smoke was wafted by a strong breeze almost directly into the Back Bay Hotel. While there was no panic in the hotel, there was much excitement among the employes and the guests.

A second and a third alarm were soon decided upon by Chief Mullen, who took charge of the blaze in person.

The streets were soon black with people who were on their way to work and who were employed in that congested sec-

PRIEST TELLS CAMORRA STORY

VITERBO, April 6.—Father Vitozzi, "the guardian angel of the Camorra," took the witness stand in the trial of Enrico Alfano and his Camorrist associates today, and denied his guilt with such impassioned vehemence that he collapsed and fell to the floor in a faint, halting the proceedings.

It was Father Vitozzi who secured the release of Enrico Alfano, alias Erricone, when the head of the Neapolitan society was first imprisoned in the investigation of the double murder of Gennaro Cuocolo and his beautiful wife, Mary Cuocolo.

When the direct interrogation of the priest was begun to-day there was a dramatic scene. Attired in his clerical robes, the priest solemnly crossed himself as he began his story.

Witness Weeps Frequently.

The witness was excited and frequently wept, pressing a handkerchief to his eyes. At other times he spoke in a loud, bold tone and added emphasis to his words by vigorous gestures.

It developed in his testimony that he had appealed to King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena to help him in his present dilemma. He said that he had sent personal communications to both the King and Queen.

"They must surely realize that the terrible charge against me is false," cried the priest. "Surely they will help me in my hour of need."

A murmur ran through the other Camorrists in the steel cage, many of the prisoners exclaiming: "Yes, all of us know you are innocent, father, just as we are innocent ourselves."

President Bianchi of the Assize Court started in by asking Father Vitozzi many questions about his affiliations in Naples.

"All I Ask Is Justice."

"I am well known and respected there," answered the witness. "I am honored to say that my acquaintances include Senators and many members of the Chamber of Deputies."

Rising in his seat, the priest cried: "I am a martyr. I am the victim of the slander and cruelty which has been visited upon me for the past three years. All I ask is this world is justice."

He quieted then, and went on to say that he had once officiated at memorial religious services at the Mesna chapel and had received a telegram from Queen Margherita thanking him for his services which he had given free. The telegram, said the priest, is among his belongings. He had it framed as a keepsake.

Father Vitozzi, as the other defendants examined before him had done, accused the carabineers, charging that they were in league with certain other interests to bring "about the downfall of innocent men."

Collapses in His Chair.

"Throughout my life," continued Vitozzi, "I have been a good priest. Priests more than any others come in contact with evil. It is their duty to accept the confessions of wrongdoers. The priesthood is intended to combat the wickedness of the world and to do that we must know what we have to fight."

The witness then told of saying masses for the repose of the soul of the late King Humbert, who was murdered by anarchists. As his story progressed he grew more and more excited. In the midst of a bit of weeping he suddenly turned forward in his chair in a collapse.

Two carabineers ran forward and lifted him while another called a physician. President Bianchi immediately announced a recess of court. Virtozzi has been ill for some time from heart trouble.

NEW SECRETARY OF TREASURY IN CUBA

HAVANA, April 6.—A shift in the Cabinet was made to-day. President Gomez accepted the resignation of M. Machado, Secretary of the Treasury, appointing in his place R. Mg2ina-Arliz, who held the portfolio of agriculture. The latter post was given to Emilio del Junco, Secretary of Justice, who is succeeded in his former office by Jesus Barraque.

PRETE VITTOZZI PIANGE E SVIENE

VITERBO, 6 Aprile.—Il padre Vittozzi, il "buon angelo della Camorra," ha cominciato, oggi, a rispondere al suo interrogatorio, avanti la Corte di Assisie, nel processo fatto a sua carico e contro Alfano ed i trentotto camorristi corresi. Egli si è proclamato innocente da ogni compartecipazione alla terribile associazione contanto calore e veemenza che alfine è svenuto, cadendo quasi esanime sul tavolato. L'udienza fu seguita a cio' e stata sospesa.

Durante attività del padre Vittozzi si deve sa Enrico Alfano, alias "Erricone," capo della Camorra napoletana, quando una prima volta fu arrestato durante l'istruttoria del processo Cuocolo, fu subito rilasciato.

Quando continuo' a rispondere all'interrogatorio, il prete Vittozzi, gesticolando all'alto tuiare ei fece il segno della croce. Fu una scena drammatica.

Plange Frequentemente.

Parlando, il prete Vittozzi e' mosto eccitato e piange frequente mente, costretto a mantenere il fazzoletto avanti agli occhi. Spesso anche, egli parla ad alta voce sonora, aggiungendo enfasi al suo dire con gesti vigorosi.

Egli dice di essersi rivolto al re Vittorio Emanuele ed alla regina Elena, chiedendo il loro aiuto in questa grave dilemma. Afferma di aver inviate delle lettere personali al Sovrani Citati.

"Le Loro Maesta', dice il Prete, debbono riconoscere che la terribile accusa che grava contro di me e' falsa, ed essi certamente mi aiuteranno nel mio del disagno."

Al suo dire un mormorio di approvazione o' elevato dalla gabbia di ferro, e molti dei prigionieri fanno il saluto: "Si, padre Vittozzi, tutti noi sappiamo che voi siete innocente, proprio come siamo innocenti noi stessi!"

Il Presidente della Corte Bianchi ha cominciato a domandare al Vittozzi in riguardo alle sue relazioni in Napoli.

Solo Giustizia Domanda.

"Sono conosciutissimo e rispettato, in Napoli, dice l'interrogato. "Mi sento altamente onorato di dire che fra le persone, di alta posizione, che mi amici anche molti Senatori e molti membri della Camera dei Deputati."

Poscia, alzandosi dal suo scanno, il prete grida: "Io sono un martire! Sono stato vittima per le calunnie e le vendetta' che hanno gravato sulle persone del povero Cuocolo. Tutto cio' che adesso domando e' "giustizia."

Egli, dopo cio', si e' per un momento raddolcito, ed ha detto che una volta fece dei servizi religiosi nella Cappella della Monza, ricevendone un telegramma di ringraziamento dalla regina Margherita, ghe che' le sue funzioni religiose erano state fatte per la Camera. Disse egli, e' fu la cose piu' rare che gli appartengono, e le tiene in un posto onde ne ricordo.

Anche il padre Vittozzi, come han fatto i precedenti accusati interrogati accusa di calunnia i carabinieri. I quali, dice egli, legati ad alti locali interessi, han dovuto far cadere le responsabilita' del delitti che non poterono scoprire su degli innocenti calunniati.

Il Prete Sviene.

"Durante la mia vita, continua padre Vittozzi, sono stato sempre un buon prete. I preti piu' di qualsiasi altra categoria di persone, sono in contatto col peccato. E il loro dovere di correggere i malfattori del colpevoli penitenti. Il prete ha il dovere di confortare in carcere dei malfatti, per riscatto a cio' egli deve conoscere ove sia il male.

"Il Vittozzi, indi, dice di aver celebrate delle messe in onore ed in suffragio dell're Umberti I, che fu ucciso dagli anarchici. E come egli continua diventa sempre piu' commosso ed eccitato. Nel pronunciare ed in una scoppio di pianto, egli, alfine, si abbandona nella sedia a sdraio.

Due carabinieri accorrono e in sostenendo, mentre un altro per il dottore. Allora il presidente Bianchi immediatamente ordina la sospensione.

Padre Vittozzi e stato per parecchio tempo ammalato di cuore.

WOMAN EDITOR OF ROCKLAND IS DEAD

ROCKLAND, April 6.—Hilda B. Lond, formerly owner and editor of the Rockland Independent, a unique character in Plymouth County journalism, died early today at her home at the age of thirty-six. Miss Lond was for a number of years a school teacher in Rockland and later took up writing for the Independent, then became editorial writer and then owner. She was for the past thirty years a vegetarian, eating neither meat nor butter or drinking milk. She was a sister of the late Congressman Eugene Lond of California.

'DOUBLE CROSS' BALLOT LEGAL

Voters, attention! You may double cross a man when you go to the polls, according to a decision handed down by Judge Loring of the Supreme Court.

If you double cross him, you don't do him any damage. You help elect him. Judge Loring's decision says that such a cross is perfectly legal, and should be counted.

Incidentally the judge passes on various other kinds of crosses in his decision. He holds that a cross with two lines one way crossed by one line the other way is legal.

He also holds that if one line just touches, but does not cross the other, that is legal.

He further holds that if one line is made and a dot is made where the lines evidently placed his pencil, but did not continue the mark, it is not legal and should not be counted.

The decision came in the case of Hiffith Mount of Leominster, who petitioned for a writ to compel the registrars to declare him elected a member of the school committee of that town. The court dismissed the petition and decides that Appleton H. Pierce is elected by a majority of one vote.

SMASHES AUTO TO SAVE CHILD'S LIFE

Charles H. Williams, a chauffeur for William H. Gove, member of the Governor's Council, to-day ran his auto into the curbstone on Lafayette street, Salem, to avoid running down a seven-year-old girl. Williams was driving his employer's machine. The accident occurred opposite the French school. The little girl ran across the street in front of the car. The front wheels were torn off and the body of the machine was smashed to splinters.

$64,000 IN PUBLIC GIFTS BY PRIEST

SPRINGFIELD, April 6.—Public bequests amounting to $64,000 are provided for in the will of Rev. Bartholomew M. Keany, rector of the Roman Catholic Church at Boniville. The largest single bequest is $25,000 for the saying of masses for the repose of Father Mc-Keany's soul, the souls of all his former parishioners, and all souls in purgatory. The masses are to be celebrated "any in missionary priests in China, India and Africa, and in no other countries." Rev. J. A. Walsh of the Boston Cathedral is to be consulted about the proper distribution of the money. A total of $7,000 is given to the Catholic bishop of Springfield for the use of the Sisters of the Good Shepherd.

NONE HELD LIABLE FOR MAN'S DEATH

Judge Avery to-day filed in the Norfolk County Superior Court his report of the inquest on the death of Warren H. Hoag, the seventy-five-year-old driver of the horse that was removing earthworks in the Forest Hills Cemetery when struck by a car in Newcomb square. Judge Avery does not hold any person liable for the accident, but says that Conductor Litchfield should have kept aboard his platform instead of standing in the front vestibule.

MAYOR IS EXPECTED HOME THIS EVENING

Mayor Fitzgerald and his band of Chicago business men commandeered with City Hall to-day the Mayor telephoned his secretary from New York that he and the party had reached New York after spending four strenuous days in the interests of the public parks, playgrounds and schools of Chicago. The Mayor said that he would reach the city either late this evening or early morning.

GREAT BRIBERY SCANDAL CASE IS RE-OPENED

Lafollette Presents Resolution to Reopen Inquiry; Likely to Have Wide Range.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Senator La Follette to-day introduced in the Senate a resolution asking for an investigation of the election of Senator Lorimer of Illinois.

Although it has been expected that the opponents of Senator Lorimer would take action to reopen the investigation of the legality of Lorimer's seat during the present session of Congress, the prompt action of Senator La Follette to-day caused a sensation in the Senate.

Immediately after the opening prayer the resolution was introduced.

Recites Illinois Testimony.

Senator La Follette preceded it with a long statement reciting the previous acting of the Senate in the other Lorimer investigation, and in this the committee on privileges and elections was criticised for its failure to secure overwhelming and reliable testimony which had a bearing on the case. It then recited that the Illinois Legislature appointed a committee to investigate the charges against Lorimer and refers to the testimony recently given before that body, in which it was alleged that $100,000 had been expended to obtain the election of Lorimer.

The resolution then nominated five new Senators, all of them without previous experience with the Lorimer case, to conduct an investigation, the expenses to be paid out of the contingent fund of the Senate.

The resolution names Senator Works of California, Senator Townsend of Michigan, Senator McLaurin of Connecticut, all Republicans, and Senator Kern of Indiana and Senator Pomerene of Ohio, Democrats, as the committee.

Resolution Goes on Table.

Senator Works has already permitted himself to be quoted as one of the most urgent Republicans, and Senator McLaurin has been looked upon by the Lafollette lieutenants as possible recruit.

Senator Townsend was his election largely assuming to be an insurgent and has been identified with the insurgents since his election.

Both Kern and Pomerene are regarded as opponents of Senator Bailey, Lorimer's champion in the last session.

Senator Lafollette refused to allow the resolution to go to a committee, and it was laid on the table, where he will call it up at a later date.

The resolution in full is as follows:

Whereas, The Senate resolution adopted June 20, 1910, authorized and directed the Committee on Privileges and Elections to investigate the charges against William Lorimer, a Senator from the State of Illinois, and to report to the Senate whether in the election of Senator Lorimer a Senator of the United States from the State of Illinois, corrupt means were used and employed corrupt methods and practices; and

Whereas, Said committee, pursuant to said resolution, took the testimony of a large number of witnesses and reduced the testimony to printed form and reported the same to the Senate, which was thereafter considered and acted upon by the Senate, and

$100,000 Corruptly Expended

Whereas, The Illinois State Senate thereafter appointed a committee to investigate like charges against William Lorimer, and report to said State Senate whether in the election of said

PRINZESS IRENE RUNS AGROUND

NEW YORK, April 6.—The steamer Prinzess Irene went aground to the fog bear the Lone Hill life saving station, Long Branch today. The grounding was reported by wireless that the vessel and passengers were in no danger. The Prinzess Irene is owned by the North German Lloyd line and left Genoa on March 23 for New York.

The Prinzessen Irene carried 1,720 passengers, the greatest number ever carried by the heavy fog which has prevailed along the Atlantic coast for more than thirty-six hours.

Shortly after word was received from the captain that the vessel was aground, a distress call for assistance reached the office of the North German Lloyd line, and several wrecking tugs were sent to pull the ship off.

When the boats and the revenue cutter Seneca tried to drag the big liner free at high tide they failed, and failed.

Passengers Undisturbed.

In another wireless captain von Letten Petersen, captain of the Prinzess Irene, said that he expected to get the liner off at high tide. At midnight were wet, the passengers were all told of the grounding was alarmed when the liner jammed her nose into the mud at shortly after 2 o'clock. The passengers were made up of 324 cabin and 1,435 steerage.

After a thrilling battle with the surf the lone Hill life savers reached and boarded the Prinzess Irene. The fog had lifted in that time and the passengers crowded to the gangway to the rescue boats from the deck of the vessel. The captain explained the accident thus:

"We got a little confused in the fog. A magnetic disturbance deflected our compass and we got out of the regular path. We were proceeding very slowly when we ran aground."

After receiving these assurances, the life savers returned to the Lone Hill station.

Life Savers Rush to Scene.

Word of the liner's plight had reached Lone Island, ten miles away, and been relayed to the agents of the New York Life savers hurried to Lone Hill from the Rose Point and Point O'Woods stations and stood by in readiness for any emergency.

Lieutenant Wilbur A. Atlee of the United States revenue cutter service was at Sandy Hook when he learned that the Prinzess Irene was aground. He immediately put into a motor boat, crossed Great South Bay, and hurried to the scene. He put to the liner. He was likewise reassured.

MAGDALENA BAY LAND FOR JAPS?

TACOMA, Wash., April 6.—The practical completion of arrangements for the sale of the Flores-Hale estate, comprising 12,500 square miles on Magdalena Bay, on the west coast of Lower California, was announced to-day in Ezra P. Savage, ex-governor of Nebraska, who is one of the owners. The deal is said by a syndicate of Eastern men.

The land is said to have been sought by the Japanese government, for a coaling station, and Tacoma capitalists, Seattle syndicates and one American syndicate have been figuring on the purchase. One of these syndicates has an option; which one is not announced.

MURPHY DEALS BLOW NOW AT MR. MELLEN'S RUBBER HALF-MILES

Representative James J. Murphy of Ward 12 handed another wallop to the Mellen rubber mile in the House to-day by filing a bill to prohibit railroads from collecting mileage for distances of less than half a mile. Murphy was the father of the order passed by the House yesterday directing the Railroad Commission to investigate the rubber mile and report to the Legislature by May 1.

Murphy dug through the law books last night for the statute which allows railroads to collect mileage for fractions of a mile. He found it—Chapter 689 of the Acts of 1908. He also found an easy way to amend it. His amending bill was referred by the House to its Committee on Rules on the question of constitutionality.

The present law and the Murphy amendment (the latter in capitals) are as follows:

Murphy Revision Bill.

ACTS OF 1908, CHAPTER 689.

An Act Relative to the Issuing of Mileage and Commutation Tickets by Railroad Corporations.

Be it enacted, etc., as follows:

Section 1. Every railroad corporation issuing mileage tickets shall, upon presentation at such a ticket by a passenger, detach therefrom one coupon and not more for each mile and fraction EQUALLING OR EXCEEDING ONE-HALF MILE thereof actually traveled; provided, however, that for distances less than three miles three coupons may be detached distances to or from the station known as Back Bay on the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, and the stations known as Trinity Place and Huntington avenue on the Boston & Albany Railroad, shall be computed as if to or from the Boston terminal station.

Burt's Immunity Bath.

General Passenger Agent Charles M. Burt of the Boston & Maine system, the father of Burt's mile on the railroad "Rubber Mile" plant, is about to pluck another "constructive mileage" blossom from that sesquipedalious hybrid. Mr. Burt, who laughingly answered loud and vociferous shouts from commuters by declaring that the "Rubber Mile" "only" cost him twelve cents more from Boston to Portland, is again clinching as he plans an immunity bath for his "Rubber Mile."

The Interstate Commerce Commission. That's the answer.

Mr. Burt is annoyed and peeved that his "Rubber Mile" plant, to which he points with pride, is being viewed with alarm by commuters and with suspicion by the railroad commissions of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Maine. Hence he plans to extend the constructive mileage principle and by stretching the "rubber mile" clear across these States, remove it from the ken of State commissions and fork it away safely under the protecting wing of interstate commerce.

How They'll Stretch It.

The immunity plan for the rubber mile is simple. Mr. Burt and his fellow workers in rubber will simply increase by an equivalent distance the mileage between the two nearest stations on either side of the line between this State and New Hampshire and do the same thing on the New Hampshire-Maine line should officials of either of the Commonwealths interfere with the rubber miles in their respective States.

"With the constructive mileage in two States," says the rubber-mile wizard, "the Boston & Maine will be immune from interference by either State commission. It then becomes a matter of interstate commerce."

Chairman Hall of the Massachusetts Railroad Commission admits that the latest Burt plan makes the Boston & Maine invulnerable to State law but he says such action will make the road amenable to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which body he believes would order the mileage restored to the old basis.

After the Rubber.

Chairman Whittemore of the New Hampshire Railroad Commission, is going to get after the B. & M. for extending the rubber mile to that State. "We will make an immediate investigation," he said "and if the law is being violated by means of increased mileage tables or in any other manner the railroads will be compelled to obey the law."

"If the railroad keeps the mileage over the Eastern division between Boston and Portland at 115 miles, by stretching the mileage between the two next nearest stations on opposite sides of the State line, I am confident the Interstate Commerce Commission will restore the mileage to the actual distance."

Frank Ketter, railroad commissioner of Maine, said that Maine would look into the rubber mile plan. "I had been given to understand," he said "that the constructive mileage had been placed by the Boston & Maine between stations in Maine and New Hampshire, where it was immune from interference by the Railroad Commission of this State."

Strangely enough the rubber mile applies only to commuters. It does not mean any more money for the engineers and train crews, who are paid on the mileage basis of their runs. Their wages are still computed from the "working timetables," which are based on actual surveys. The various labor organizations of railway men are going to take this point up, it was reported to-day.

Oliver Cromwell's Head Is Exhibited in London.

LONDON—What is asserted to be the head of Oliver Cromwell was exhibited to the members of the Royal Archaeological Society. According to tradition the skull was buried with the body in the top of Westminster Hall, and placed up by a sentry, who hid it and only confessed on his death bed to his wife. Sir Henry Howarth and Professor Boyd Dawkins both state that the evidence makes it extremely probable that the head is that of the protector.

Balloons for Polar Flights.

BERLIN—Wm. Zeppelin to Spitzbergen is the title of an official account of the count's polar expedition during July and August of last year. The story is introduced with a preface by Prince Henry of Prussia describing the object of the expedition. This, the Prince says, was to investigate the utility of airships for polar expeditions. He believes dirigibles could not be employed in Southern Arctic exploration, owing to the incessant cyclonic storms.

JUSTICE M'KENNA KNOWS "CHEESE IT!"

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Some of the slang phrases Justice McKenna of the Supreme Court of the United States picked up years ago still cling in his mind. Frederick D. McKenney, counsel in a case before the court this week, was trying to explain to the Justices what a railroad conductor meant when he said to an engineer: "Oh, hell, back up." He was having some difficulties with the abstruse point when Justice McKenna came to his assistance.

"Did he mean what was once expressed by the slang phrase, 'Oh, cheese it?'"

"Exactly," responded Mr. McKenney, and the whole bench joined Justice McKenna in a chuckle over his slang.

WATCH FOR LIST SUNDAY, APRIL 9

By THE CONTEST EDITOR.

Alice Champagne, Salem Prize Contest Candidate.

The most important announcement made by the Contest Editor since the AMERICAN'S $35,000 Prize Contest was inaugurated last January will come next Sunday, April 9.

On that date the Contest Editor will publish:

First—The list of candidates' standing, compiled up to March 31.

Second—The names of the leaders in the open contest for the capital prize.

Third—The name of the winner of the Buick runabout in the March special offer.

This three-fold announcement is of the utmost importance to candidates.

The list of candidates' standing will be the second one to be published so far. The first list was published in two sections, Districts One and Two on March 12 and the remaining five districts on March 19. Next Sunday's list will include all seven districts. Every candidate knows what great effect this next list will have on the general contest campaign. It will tell who the leaders were on March 31, when the main contest was half over. Some who were high up in the first list may find themselves passed by rival candidates in the coming list.

The names of the leaders for the capital prize, the $8,000 house and two lots at Riverton-on-the-Charles, will be of absorbing interest to every candidate, irrespective of districts.

All candidates and their friends need to get the AMERICAN of next Sunday, April 9. Soon, the picturesque city on the North Shore, is known as the City of Witches. There may not be any witches there now, but there are some lively candidates in the big contest. One of them is Alice B. Champagne, a school girl candidate in the District Two field.

DR. MURLIN AT B. U. TOMORROW

Dr. Lemuel H. Murlin of Baldwin, Kas., recently elected to the presidency of Boston University, will be presented to the students of the university at the regular Chapel to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

"My feelings are a bit mixed as I take up this new work," said Dr. Murlin. "I am a little bit afraid, not of the work, but of the change. It is a serious matter to change from an environment where one has spent seventeen years to an entirely new locality. There are several things in Kansas which I regret leaving. But it has seemed to me that a larger field is open here."

EASY WAY TO IMPROVE YOUR COMPLEXION

(From Los Angeles Press.)

In an address before the convention of "Beauty Specialists" here to-day, Mrs. Mae Martyn, the noted authority on beauty culture, spoke of a new and simple method of quickly beautifying complexions. She demonstrated before the large audience a lotion made from 4 ounces spurmax dissolved in ½ pint hot water with 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine added. She applied this lotion gently to the face, neck and arms of a decidedly unattractive young woman. In a few moments all trace of a shiny, sallow, muddy skin was gone and the transformation to that of a really charming, velvety complexion was marvelous.

After much excitement and intense interest Mrs. Martyn said: "Any druggist can supply the ingredients for this lotion at a small cost. It does not rub off or show like powder and is an unequaled aid to beauty."

The value is 1.50 yard
PRICE 50c

The original purchase of these fascinating silks contained about 8000 yards, all that the manufacturer had, therefore he closed them out at a price which makes possible this remarkable offering.

Every yard in the newest serge weave, similar to the Surah weave, so much in demand in the higher priced silks used by the great model makers in bringing out their high priced model dresses and suits.

Fine Silks--Reduced

The active selling of silks during the past month has naturally resulted in an accumulation of odd lots of various kinds, short pieces, single dress lengths, and remnants—they are all desirable in every way—style, quality, pattern and color—most of them in double widths from 36 to 44 in. There is not a yard in the entire lot worth less than 1.50 and from that up to 3.00 yard.

They have all been marked 68c and 95c yard

THE LOWEST ADVERTISING RATE IN NEW ENGLAND

No newspaper in New England reaches for its advertisers as many readers at as low a cost as does

THE BOSTON AMERICAN

It costs an advertiser but one and one-hundredths cents ($.0101) per inch per thousand circulation, or seven-hundred-twenty-five thousandths of a mill ($.000725) per agate line per thousand circulation.

From the most reliable statistics available the BOSTON AMERICAN is surpassed in the lowness of its advertising rate (and then only by a slight margin) by only two newspapers in America—the New York Journal and the Portland (Oregon) Journal, a paper with 37,181 circulation.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is subject to the most rigid investigation by anyone at any time.

THAYER-WARREN NUPTIALS TODAY

Miss Katherine Warren, a Vincent Club girl, was married at noon to-day to John E. Thayer, Jr. Owing to the comparatively recent death of Samuel D. Warren, the wedding was performed at the Warren residence, No. 261 Arlington street, instead of at the Arlington Street Church as planned. Miss Warren chose for her maid of honor, her close friend, Miss Helen Sears, daughter of Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears. The friendship between the girls and their families has been close. The girls made their debut the same season, three Winters ago. Before that they traveled abroad, chaperoned by Mrs. J. Montgomery Sears. There were no bridesmaids.

The wedding unites two of the most prominent families in Boston society. Miss Warren is the second daughter of Mrs. Samuel D. Warren of Marlboro street and Mattapoisett. Besides the Vincent Club she is a member of the New Riding Club. On her mother's side she is a granddaughter of the late Thomas F. Bayard, American Ambassador to England.

John E. Thayer, Jr., is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Thayer of Lancaster. He graduated from Harvard last June. This year he has been taking a course in the graduation school of business administration at the college.

The best man was Robert Amory of Commonwealth avenue. The ushers were Henry Sargent Appleton and Raymond Belmont, both of New York; Harvard '10; George Denny, Harvard '09; William Perkins Hemans, Harvard '10; Clarence Schofield West, Harvard '10; Bayard Werren, brother of the bride; Gilbert Stuart of Philadelphia, Harvard '10, and George A. Parker of Lancaster, Harvard '10.

THIRTEEN COLORADO WOMEN ARE ELECTED

DENVER, Col., April 6.—Thirteen women will head important municipal offices in Colorado as a result of last Tuesday's elections. Pueblo, the second largest city in the State, elected a woman auditor, Leadville, Telluride, Idaho Springs, Greeley and Montrose elected women treasurers, as did also the smaller towns of Fairplay and Ridgeway. Colorado City and Las Animas elected city clerks, and Durango a woman alderman.

SHOE WORKER WINS SUIT AGAINST UNION

Donabed Mukijian, a Lynn shoe worker, to-day won his suit against the United Boot and Shoe Workers' Union. In his suit he charged that they prevented him from getting employment and refused him membership in their union. He was awarded $200 damages and costs and an injunction granted restraining the union from in any way preventing Mukijian from getting work. The decision was handed down by Judge Pierce in the Superior Court.

MISS WARREN WHO IS BRIDE TODAY; HER MAID OF HONOR

MISS KATHERINE WARREN

MISS HELEN SEARS

SUFFRAGIST ON HOUSE DEBATE

In a letter to the AMERICAN, Mary Hutcheson Page, the noted advocate of women's suffrage, rebukes members of the Legislature for their lack of dignity during debate on the suffrage bill. The letter follows:

Editor of the AMERICAN:

The spectacle afforded by the Legislature at the State House yesterday afternoon in debate on the woman suffrage bill was indeed a significant one to those women of Massachusetts who crowded the galleries. It has always been said that wherever men congregated alone the moral tone is low, whether in the logging camp, among soldiers, in the saloon, the men's clubs, or at the stag dinner. The halls of Legislature are apparently the exception to the rule.

The joy with which any reference bordering on vulgarity was hailed by one legislator, the general loud guffaws of laughter that greeted the speech of one poor orator, whose hysterical, perverted, offensive talk was almost incomprehensible to the women in the galleries, proved evidence, if proof were necessary, how absolutely essential are the presence and equal participation of women in preserving the standard of self-respect among men.

Puerile and Personal.

Although I have listened to many legislative debates on woman suffrage, I think I never heard one when the men seemed so puerile, so personal, so ignorant and so low-minded. Their ability to display carelessness indifference and lack of attention to anything that savored of an intellectual advocacy of the claims of women suffrage, and their instant and hilarious response on the least allusion of any questionable kind on the part of our opponents, their hateful, personal attacks on one another, revealed their calibre.

Indeed, one of the members on our side interrupted the last gallery-speaker to beg of him to refrain from making any more personal remarks on this subject and on that, but to use what little time he had left in giving one good, logical reason, if he could, why women should not vote. That the gentleman in question did not comply reflected quite as much on his character as on his mind.

Man-Suffrage a Failure.

Another man displayed his sex-antagonism by hurling the invective "female women" as his great contribution to the argument.

As we listened to the futile, careless, sometimes frivolous discussion of a cause that is of world-wide importance, and of the very deepest significance, it seems that has enlisted the warm support of the ablest minds since humanity began to think, a reason that the welfare of women and therefore of the race depends upon; as we compared the utterances of these illustrious men of Massachusetts whose names are emblazoned on the scrolls of the House, with the inept, degenerate sentiments of a dozen on the floor, it was irresistibly borne in upon us that democracy with man-suffrage means the selection of representatives as these, is an undeniable failure, and that the suffrage is the bounden right of women in an indispensable condition to the progress of our race.

Women the Only Hope.

Women will have, when they get the suffrage, a difficult and mighty task to perform in raising the standard of the men elected to office, but women are our only hope.

The spectacle was one to discourage and dismay all women and men of true patriotism, and to make us vow a new consecration to press forward with greater energy and determination than ever to win for ourselves a position that will assure the dignity and respect of womanhood.

MARY HUTCHESON PAGE.

SOUTH BOSTON BOY HAS DISAPPEARED

Henry Green, the twelve-year-old son of Hyman Green, a tailor, living at No. 320 West Broadway, South Boston, has disappeared from the house and the police have been called to search for him. He left the first wife, now Mrs. Sarah Winestein, in the black and white dress he wore in connection the mother has been writing to the police pleading to have her in Peoria La Chute, Ia., where she is now living, and it is thought he may be on his way there. He was sent on an errand with fifty cents in his hand seven by his father.

K. OF C. ENTERTAIN.

Roxbury Council, Knights of Columbus, give the first of a series of entertainments to members and their friends tonight, at Tremont Hall, Roxbury. The first degree will be worked afterward—an entertainment will be given by T. J. Conden.

CITY SHORT OF EASTER LILIES

There is a scarcity of Easter lilies in Boston this year, according to Boston florists. A large percentage of the bulbs received during the past year have either decayed or become diseased, making it impossible for the growers to get good results from them.

The bulbs are shipped from Japan, Bermuda, Holland and Belgium. The bulbs from the two latter countries are especially the best, while those coming from Japan at times are also good flower producers.

CARDINAL GIBBONS DECLARES PUBLIC MUST CONTROL THE TRUSTS

BALTIMORE, April 6.—Cardinal Gibbons, in an interview with an AMERICAN correspondent to-day, said:

An important condition in the industrial development of the country is the fact that the right of the people to fair and honest treatment by the big business interests is daily becoming more widely recognized by broad-minded and progressive men. Laws are being passed and enforced for the proper regulation and control of great corporations, particularly public service companies, and the rights of the people are each year being better guarded and protected. This is as it should be. It creates honesty in business relations, and without honesty there can be no real progress.

It was said recently by Theodore N. Vail, the head of the great telephone and telegraph interests, that the public should be considered as virtual partners in all matters that pertain to the common welfare. Therefore, he says, he believes that there should be proper public control and regulation of public service companies. This utterance from a man representing 70,000 stockholders is indicative of the progressive spirit of the times. It shows a broad appreciation of the rights of the people.

The public has a right to exercise intelligent control over corporations which serve it with necessities. No friend of his race can contemplate, without painful emotions, heartless monopolists exhibiting a grasping avarice which has dried up every sentiment of sympathy in the public and created a sordid selfishness which is deaf to cries for justice and fair treatment.

Public control and regulation will prevent such conditions. The healthy combination of human forces in the economic world can accomplish results which could not be effected by any individual efforts. Our industrial progress is so vast that great combinations of capital are now necessary forces in our business life. Many of these corporations have treated the public unfairly; many have been unjustly criticised by the public. There would be greater harmony, more benefits and less ground for complaint if everybody would keep in view the golden maxim of the Gospel: "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so to them."

The people deserve fair and honest treatment, and in return they should treat the big business interests justly. Public control and regulation should be such as to assure the people good service at fair prices, and should also protect the investor. It should prevent destructive industrial warfare, for the people in the end pay for such strife. It should end improper influence with the rights of the people and with the enforcements of just decisions. It should encourage honest effort to serve the people with the utilities which they require and at the same time furnish proper protection to the men who invest their money.

MRS. ARMOUR'S BONDS STOLEN

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 6.—All but a few of the $100,000 worth of stocks and bonds stolen from Mrs. S. J. Armour, widow of Simeon B. Armour of the Armour Packing Company, have been returned. Mrs. Armour refused to make known the name of the thief.

DANCER GETS $2,500 VERDICT

Mrs. Florence Locke of Needham, formerly known on the stage as Florence Kay, to-day was awarded a verdict of $2,500 in her suit for $10,000 against the city by a jury in the second session of the Suffolk Superior Court. The jury was out one hour. Mrs. Locke based her claim on a fall into a hole in the sidewalk in Winter street near West street on March 26, 1907.

She testified that a short time before the accident she was a dancer in the "Earl and the Girl" company, but was obliged to leave the company because she had injured her ankle. She was visiting her mother in Charlestown while waiting for her ankle to heal. Rock Hedge and the Waltham Free reading room swimmers also competed, the former winning eleven points and the latter three points

SUSPEND RISE IN EXPRESS RATES

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today suspended until October 31 proposed advances in rates for the transportation of liquors by the Adams, United States and Southern Express Companies. The rates were to have become effective April 14.

The commission issued new regulations governing filing of tariffs and classifications of express companies. The commission holds that where a commodity rate is named, it is the only lawful rate to be charged, notwithstanding that there may be a lower merchandise rate. Joint tariffs naming rates from a point in the United States to either Canada or Mexico must be concurred in by all express companies parties thereto. Ocean carriers do not have to concur in rates charged by express companies.

Regulations were also published governing the manner of application of the safety appliance law to common carriers. The designation of the number, dimensions and location of the various safety appliances are specifically stated. Allowances of time are made for the railroads to equip their rolling stock with safety appliances.

45 BULGARIAN ALIENS HELD

Alfred Rushworth, an English immigrant, made his third attempt to enter this country today when he arrived aboard the Cymric from Liverpool. He was immediately recognized by the immigration officials and will be deported for the fourth time.

Rushforth attempted suicide in Providence three years ago. He was taken sent back to England as insane. He tried twice within the next year to re-enter the country and was sent back.

The Cymric had thirty-eight saloon passengers and 958 steerage. Of the steerage passengers 228 were Irish.

In the steerage were twenty-five Bulgarians. They gave the names of other Bulgarians in this country to whom they said they were going. It developed that every name was that of one of forty-five Bulgarians who are now being held in Portland and who arrived there last week.

This makes seventy Bulgarians who are now being held. The officials say they are sent here in violation of the contract labor law. All will probably be deported.

GEORGE R. AGASSIZ TAXED IN NEWPORT

NEWPORT, R. I., April 6.—George R. Agassiz of Cambridge, Mass., has appeared before the tax assessors declaring he is to become a citizen of Newport and requests to be assessed for personal and real estate here.

WIFE WAS HER OWN DETECTIVE

Mrs. Charlotte C. Kimball of Brookline told in the Dedham divorce court today how she became her own detective. She told how she trailed her husband, Allen Kimball, a Boston broker, to the apartments of another and resisted apartments opposite, where she testified she saw her husband and the other woman kiss and embrace each other. She had a policeman and a private detective with her on different occasions as she watched, and these persons corroborated her evidence.

Mrs. Kimball wept throughout her testimony. She was dressed in black and in very pretty. With a sister she runs a dressmaking establishment in Park square.

It married Mr. Kimball at Boston in 1898," she told Judge Melvin Loughlin. "I became suspicious of Mr. Kimball. My sister and I hired a room at No. 302 Columbus avenue, where we could look into the room of Mrs. Lucy White on the third floor of the Newcastle Court. I saw my husband and Mrs. White embrace each other on several occasions.

"On December 28, while in this room, I saw my husband and Mrs. White embrace and kiss each other. From December to December 29, I watched them nearly every night. On December 22 I had Officer Irwin with me when the same thing occurred.

LOBSTER PRICES ARE EXPECTED TO DROP

Boston dealers smile at the printed report that the price of lobsters will soon reach $1 per pound. Boston dealers say they do not believe lobsters are going higher than 40 cents, and expect a drop when better weather permits fishermen to get busy. Receipts of lobsters from the Provinces at present are about one-fifth normal, owing to stormy conditions.

STUDENTS SEEK WORK IN THE WHEAT FIELDS

TOPEKA, Kan., April 6.—More than a hundred Eastern college boys have already inquired of Charles Harris, director of the State Free Employment Bureau, about the prospects of employment in the Kansas wheat fields in the coming Summer. The majority of the inquiries are from colleges in Delaware, Pennsylvania, North Carolina and South Carolina.

SECRET BRIDE WHO FOUND HONEYMOON NEST PLACARDED

MRS. WM. H. CARNEY.

William H. Carney of Lynn and Miss Lillian McNair, who slipped away quietly and were married when it was expected that they would not wed till June, have returned to their new home at No. 172 Washington street, Lynn, that Mr. Carney engaged for his bride. Their honeymoning was not altogether featureless, for the friends they had outwitted had in their absence placed big placards in the window, lettered so that they could be read from the street: "The Newlyweds Live Here." "Come in, the bride is bashful." "Bill and Bill live here."

WINNEPESAUKEE LOW WATER LINE RAISED

CONCORD, N. H., April 6.—The picturesque littoral of Lake Winnepesaukee is to be preserved unmarred by unsightly water lines and exposed flats in the future through the efforts of Summer colonists who were successful in having passed through the State Senate a House bill fixing a new low water mark (twenty-one inches above the old) for New Hampshire's inland sea.

The dry seasons of the past two or three years, with the drawing off of the water by the lessees of water privileges, have caused great annoyance and inconvenience to Summer colonists by leaving boat landings high and dry and the shores unsightly banks of mud.

ASYLUM AIDE IS ARRAIGNED

WORCESTER, April 6.—Thomas J. Brennan, attendant at the Worcester State Hospital, for many years, arraigned this morning before Judge Pliley in the Central District Court on the charge of allowing the insane inmates to plunge Ralph K. Stewart, an aged patient at the institution, into a bath of boiling water. Stewart is in a very serious condition and may die.

Brennan was arrested yesterday on information furnished to the police by Dr. James H. Quinby, head of the hospital. His defense is that he was unable to prevent the boiling of Stewart because he had to take care of so many patients, and was called away just when the bad break occurred. Attendants for nothing Stewart, to administer to a violent inmate.

According to the information given to the police Brennan, who was a trusted employee, was in charge early Monday morning. Stewart was to have a bath and Brennan called on two of the other inmates to assist the old man to the bath room.

Plunged Into Scalding Water.

When Brennan was called away, the two inmate men took Stewart to the bath room and plunged the patient into the water and lifted Stewart into it as a "joke." The old man was badly burned about the feet and legs. The discovery was made by another attendant, who relieved Brennan at 6 o'clock and the matter was immediately brought to the attention of Dr. Quinby. Stiles by Dr. Quinby. The authorities blame Brennan because he left the patient unlocked.

He was booked on a charge of assault and battery and released on $100 bail. It is stated that he thought the bathroom was locked and that after he was called away to attend the violent patient he forgot about placing Stewart in the bath.

No Legislative Investigation.

The Governor and Council have the power to order an investigation of State hospitals for the insane, according to an opinion of the attorney-general, presented to the Legislature yesterday. The committee on joint rules, after receiving this opinion, voted to report "ought not to pass" on the Martin L. Quinn order for the legislative investigation of the treatment of the insane in all the hospitals by the committee on public charitable institutions, and especially in the Westboro Hospital, where George R. Lawson and Michael McInerney died.

BILL TO CURB MONEY LENDERS

An order for a sweeping investigation of the small loan business in Massachusetts was introduced in the Legislature today by Representative James F. Cavanagh of Norwich, Representative of the Banks and Banking Committee. The order was referred to the Committee on Rules. It gives the Banks and Banking Committee authority to investigate the methods of money lenders and to hire a stenographer and clerk to assist in the work. A report is to be made to the Legislature by June 1.

NEW SHELL RUIN OF WAR AIRSHIP

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Military experts in armaments and explosives believe that the great danger from aeroplanes and balloons in war has been set at naught by the invention of a new explosive shell by the Krupps in Germany.

The new shell is so delicately constructed that, while it readily explodes on striking a solid body, such as the gas bag of a balloon or the delicate woodwork of an aeroplane, is sufficient to cause an explosion that would

$2.50 (Canberry Sander) Vibrator 98c

WHEN you hurt yourself you rub the spot. When you have a headache you rub your temples. Why? Because friction is Nature's own remedy, and rubbing is Nature's crude way of creating vibration and starting the blood to coursing. Disease is another name for congestion. Vibration will find the blood disease or pain is congested or stagnated vibration will force or liberate the congestion, and stagnated blood flows in a rich and strong stream. Good circulation means good health, congested circulation means disease and pain.

The Lambert-Snyder Vibrator is a light, compact instrument, can be operated by anyone with one hand by moving the steel head over any rigid steel rod, and be placed in contact with any part needed.

It is Nature's own remedy—deep and concentrated; with one minute's use it sends the red blood rushing into the congested parts, relieving all disease and pain. If you have any of these ailments you need the Lambert-Snyder Vibrator: Rheumatism, Lumbago, Gout, Sciatica, Nervousness, Insomnia, Indigestion, Constipation, etc.

To the People of New England

After the most wonderful advertisement was written it was carefully studied by us with the comparative list of the usual selling prices anywhere and everywhere and the prices here quoted for the two days, Friday and Saturday.

The values are so unusual under any conditions that we feel impelled to personally sign our names to a statement as follows:

That after years of intimate association with sales of every description never have we known of equal values in new, reasonable merchandise being offered, to those making their purchases in the city of Boston. Everyone should come prepared to BUY—as to merely look would mean thousands of disappointments.

$100,000 BRIBE REVELATIONS REOPEN SENATOR LORIMER'S CASE

KOHLSAAT, FREED FROM SECRECY PLEDGE, GIVES STARTLING TESTIMONY.

Lorimer to the United States Senate—corrupt methods and practices were employed and used; and,

Whereas, As it appears from the public reports of the proceedings of the said Illinois State committee that witnesses were not called and sworn by the committee of the United States Senate appointed to investigate said charges, but have appeared before the said committee of the Illinois State Senate, and upon being interrogated have given important material testimony tending to prove that $100,000 was corruptly expended in securing the election of William Lorimer to the United States Senate, therefore,

Resolved, That Senators John B. Works, Charles J. Townsend, George P. McLean, John W. Kern and Atlee Pomerene are hereby appointed a special committee, and such committee is hereby authorized and directed to report to the senate whether in the election of William Lorimer as a Senator of the United States from the State of Illinois there were used and employed corrupt methods and practices; the said committee be authorized to sit during the sessions of the Senate and during any recess of the Senate or of Congress, to hold sessions at such place or places as it shall deem most convenient for the purposes of the investigation; to employ stenographers; to send for persons and papers; to administer oaths, and to report the result of its investigation, including all testimony taken by it, and that the expenses of the inquiry shall be paid from the contingent fund of the Senate upon vouchers to be approved by the chairman of the committee.

Stone Insists Upon Inquiry.

That Senator Lafollette will have the support of his colleagues who opposed Lorimer at the last session was shown by a statement made by Senator Stone of Missouri, after he had had a conference with President Taft. He said:

"The Senate is bound to take cognizance of the Kohlsaat testimony. I am certain that the Senate will reopen the case."

Several Senators wired today to the legislative investigating committee of the Illinois Legislature at Springfield for a transcript of the testimony concerning the revelations of the $100,000 fund alleged to have been raised to elect Lorimer. The insurgent Senators, among them Brist low, Cummins and Lafollette, are on Lorimer's trail.

"The testimony at Springfield," said Senator Stone, "adds so ugly that another investigation is absolutely necessary. This will take the form of a special committee which will be specific appointed.

"I have personally investigated the careers of Funk and Tilden and am prepared to act with others in the Senate in clearing up this scandal."

As the Dreyfus case shook the government of France and compelled the attention of the world, so has the corrupt money used by which William Lorimer sailed the United States Senate struck at the foundation of this nation.

That Lorimer will be a recording of the Lorimer case in the national Senate is assured. The question of whether he is expelled is only incidental to the disclosures that it is expected will be made regarding the audacity of the heads of the big corporations that brazenly bought and bribed Lorimer's way into the Senate chamber.

It is the belief of men in Washington today that this is but the beginning of the biggest political house-cleaning that America ever saw.

Big Men May Go to Jail.

It is believed here that many of the rich men of the country—men who have hitherto stood as great pillars of honesty—will not only be exposed to the opinion of the world in the glare of the capitol.

National honesty demands that this amazing and disgraceful piece of political bribery be probed to the very limit, regardless of the disgrace that follows.

If a vote were taken today, as the Senate is constituted, it is the opinion of Lorimer's opponents that he would be excluded.

The news of the startling testimony that a corporation fund of $100,000 had been expended to elect Lorimer did not come as a surprise to some Senators. Several of the men who took the lead in opposing Lorimer had very definite information before the adjournment of the regular session of the Senate, even before the vote on the Lorimer case, of the alleged connection between Edward Hines, the friend of Senator Lorimer, and Clarence S. Funk, of the McCormick Harvester Trust, who testified yesterday before the investigation committee of the Illinois legislature.

His Friends Have Gone.

Many of the Senators who voted to seat Lorimer are out of office now, and their places are filled for the great part by men who would vote against him. Bulkeley, Burrows, Carter, Depew, Flint, Dick, Hale, Kean, Piles, Scott, Wetmore and Thornton all voted for Lorimer, and their seats are filled by others.

The Senators sought at the last session of Congress to induce H. H. Kohlsaat of Chicago to make a statement like the testimony given in Springfield yesterday, but they failed. It was in the hope of getting such a statement that Senator La Follette opposed fixing a time for a vote on the case. When he became satisfied that he could not get the information desired he permitted the case to come to a vote, and it resulted in exoneration.

Friends of Senator Lorimer contend that under Senate precedents he could not be unseated unless it were shown that he was cognizant of corruption of the Legislature, or that sufficient votes were bribed to destroy his majority.

One new point that will tell heavily against him will be a little trick that he and Mr. Hale of Maine tried to play on the Senate in the closing hours of the last session.

Mr. Hale, without the knowledge of even his Republican colleagues on the appropriations committee, inserted an amendment to the general deficiency bill, indemnifying Mr. Lorimer to the extent of $25,000 for the defence to which he had been put in his own defence. Even before the amendment was reached it was generally known that the game was for Mr. Lorimer to rise and move to strike out the item, thus making a grandstand play for the Senate record, but one Senator, more wise than the others, saw what was happening and roundly denounced Mr. Hale and Mr. Lorimer for their tactics.

$100,000 BRIBE PLOT FOR ELECTION OF LORIMER TOLD

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 6.—The most astonishing revelation yet made in the Lorimer bribery investigation came today when it was disclosed that Lieutenant-Governor Oglesby had demanded that he be made an ex officio member of the Funk committee in the Senate, which is probing Lorimer's election as a United States Senator. Oglesby is a Lorimer man.

The second highest official of the State was peremptorily refused a place on the committee. In spite of this refusal, a motion will be made in the Senate to seat him.

Mr. Oglesby first went to the Sergeant-at-Arms of the Senate and rolled for the names of fifty men supeonaed for the inquiry. This was denied him. Then he demanded the names from members of the Funk committee, with the same result.

This move is conceded to be the last desperate stand of the Lorimer people. The capital is in an uproar. The Lorimer adherents are holding caucuses in the saloons, and it is feared that there will be a riot as the result of the bitter feeling between the two factions.

Now that Clarence S. Funk, manager of the International Harvester Company, has charged that Edward Hines, a millionaire lumber man of Chicago, asked him to contribute to a $100,000 fund raised for the election of Lorimer, it is predicted that some of the biggest men in the country will be called to testify before the committee.

Mr. Hines has been quoted as giving President Taft the credit of being indirectly responsible for the election of Lorimer.

Cost $100,000, Says Funk.

"Well, we put Lorimer over down at Springfield, but it cost us about $100,000 to do it."

Manager Funk of the International Harvester Trust, on the witness stand before the Helm committee, placed these words in the mouth of Edward Hines, millionaire president of the Hines Lumber Company.

Funk testified voluntarily to save his friend, Herman H. Kohlsaat, publisher of the Chicago Record-Herald, from being sent to jail for refusing to divulge to the committee the name of the man who had told him of the corruption fund.

The next startling incident of the session came when Funk swore that Hines had told him to consider the proposition of paying back $10,000 of the money spent to elect Lorimer and that if he decided to make the payment the money should be sent to Edward Tilden, president of the National Packing Company.

The mind of Cyrus H. McCormick, president of the International Harvester Company was brought into the case when Mr. Kohlsaat testified to having discussed with him the story of the conversation with Hines. Funk denied that the Harvester Company had paid any money or taken the Hines proposition seriously. He said that Mr. McCormick had sanctioned his refusal to assume a part of the "slush" fund debt.

McCormick Mentioned.

On these pithy statements hung the crux of the sensation which exploded like a bomb in the State Capitol.

Herman H. Kohlsaat, the first witness called, was shown a telegram which he had sent to Chairman Helm and to which he had refused to tell the name of the man who had informed him of the Lorimer fund.

Mr. Kohlsaat returned to Chicago Wednesday night expecting to be jailed for keeping his pledge. Then he said: "When I arrived at my office Thursday morning the first call came on the telephone was from Clarence S. Funk, general manager of the International Harvester Company. He said he would be less than a man if he held me longer to my pledge not to divulge his name as that of my informant."

Funk was called to the stand, and, after preliminary questions, told of meeting Hines in the Union League Club five or ten days after Lorimer's election. Then he said:

"Mr. Hines said: 'You are glad to see that I have been able to do so. Well, we put Lorimer over down at Springfield, but it cost us about $100,000 to do it. We had to get quick action when the time came, so we put up the money. We are now seeing some of our friends, so as to fix it up. If about ten of us put up $10,000 apiece that will clean it up. You people are just as interested as any of us in having the right men at Washington.'"

Funk was then asked who was designated as the collector of the fund. He begged not to be forced to divulge the name and asked to give it in confidence to the committee. But the ruling was that the name should go into the record.

"Well, I will answer under protest," he finally said. "He told me to send the money to Ed Tilden."

In his testimony Mr. Kohlsaat purged himself of the charge of contempt which he was expected to face before the Senate. He knew the temper of the Senate was such that he could not escape jail if he was not released from his pledge to Funk, but the record of to-day shows that the publisher asked no protection from the man who held his honor.

The committee believes it is at last close to the source of the scandal which has defied the court and cunning of investigators for a year.

The trail has led so far straight to the millionaires at the head of the big corporations, which have whispered and pulled the wires that lead every investigation of the Lorimer scandal into blind trails.

None can guess the next turn of the inquiry.

Subpoenas are said to have been issued for half a dozen millionaires, who, in the world attributed to Hines, were "interested in having the right sort of men in Washington."

The fate of Tilden and Hines is a matter of doubt. The committee held a short executive session after the close of Mr. Funk's testimony and suddenly decided to adjourn until one week from to-day. It is intimated that Mr. Hines may again be a witness before the committee and will be asked the same questions that were asked of him at the first hearing. Then he denied any knowledge of the use of money in the election of Lorimer and surprised the nation with a statement that Senator Aldrich, as the envoy of President Taft, had been instrumental in placing Lorimer in the Senate. The committee has refused to discuss what action will follow the introduction of Edward Tilden's name in the case. The week will be devoted to the following up of ragged ends of the trail and the serving of subpoenas.

Shock to Nation.

The evidence in the hands of the committee is thought to be so convincing and so direct that the Lloks and Beckemeyers will be ignored. It is predicted that more than two weeks like the biggest men of the nation will volunteer to come before the committee and speak the last word of revelation.

The committee was surprised when Hines testified and named the President as being indirectly responsible for Lorimer's election. The members were amazed when Mr. Kohlsaat testified and declared that he held the key to the mystery. They were astounded when Funk gave Hines the lie and told the story of the Slush Fund. The lid is supposed to have been only loosened, and the sensation which will follow its session of next week is expected to rock the nation to its foundation.

When Mr. Kohlsaat was called to the stand, he bore an air of unrightly entanglasin, in sharp contrast to his demeanor of last week, when it seemed that he must go to jail for violating his newspaper ethics and his pledge.

He was sworn, and Attorney Healy handed him a copy of a telegram which he identified as one he had sent to Chairman Helm the second day after his first appearance before the committee. It read:

Willing to Testify.

Chicago, March 30, 1911.

Senator Helm, Springfield, Ill.—The first caller at my office this morning was the gentleman who gave me the information in regard to the $100,000 Lorimer senatorial fund. He voluntarily released me from the obligation to keep his name confidential and says he is willing to appear before your committee and give it the information he gave me. If you wish to subpoena him, I will give you his name. He can appear Saturday if desired. H. H. KOHLSAAT.

"Will you tell the committee, Mr. Kohlsaat, what developed which called out the telegram, a copy of which has just been presented?" he was asked.

Urged by McCormick.

"He further said, 'When I reached his office this morning I met Mr. Cyrus McCormick, the president of the International Harvester Company, and he asked me if I had seen the morning papers as to what had taken place at Springfield. I told him I had. He remarked: 'How do you feel about it?' I said: 'Mr. McCormick, I think it is my duty not only to release Mr. Kohlsaat from all obligations of silence, but it is also my duty to go and tell everything I know in regard to it.'

"Mr. McCormick answered: 'Good; that is exactly what I wanted you to say, and I will go with that committee everything you know, no matter what the consequences may be to the International Harvester Company.'

"I then drafted later on the telegram, in conjunction with Mr. Funk, and sent it to Mr. Helm.

"If you would like to ask me how the conversation came about I am perfectly willing to tell it.

"Shortly after the White confession I met Mr. Funk on Jackson Boulevard, near the corner of Wabash avenue, on my way to lunch at the Chicago Club. It was a chance meeting, and I had not seen him for some time.

LORIMER REFUSES TO ANSWER CHARGES IN PITTSBURG TALK

PITTSBURG, April 6.—Senator Lorimer of Illinois to-day refused to discuss the charges made by Clarence S. Funk, manager of the International Harvester Company, before the Illinois legislative investigating committee, saying that Funk had been asked to contribute $10,000 to elect Lorimer.

Mr. Lorimer came to Pittsburg last night on a business trip and stopped at the Fort Pitt Hotel. He left at noon for Johnstown, where he will examine a new machine for the digging of tunnels. When asked about the charges made by the Harvester Trust manager he smiled and said:

"I have not read the newspapers yet, but know what the charges are. don't want to talk about it, however. That is something I talk about upon the floor of the Senate and not upon the streets."

"People who read about these charges against me naturally think that something awful has blown up. I have had all kinds of excitement in the twenty-five years I have been in public life, and this is only a little more excitement.

"If you or anyone else had lived all these years in my State and in my city and read everything that was printed about me and about other public persons you would not take so much stock in all the stories that now are made public and spread broadcast. You would look at it through different spectacles."

POPULAR SHAMPOO BEAUTIFIES HAIR

"At last it seems that a genuine remedy for hair and scalp troubles has been found," writes Mae Martyn in the San Francisco Chronicle. "The problem of lifeless, unattractive hair and dandruff, diseased scalps appears to be solved. I find that these conditions disappear almost as if by magic by shampooing the hair with plain canthrox.

"To prepare the shampoo, simply dissolve a teaspoonful of canthrox in a cup of hot water. It makes an abundant lather that cleanses perfectly and rinses easily. The beauty of this shampoo is that it dries very quickly and seems to invigorate and put new life into the hair and scalp. It makes the hair glossy, fluffy and easy to do up. The cost of canthrox is but little and it has the unexpressible approval of every woman who uses it."

7 OVERCOME BY ESCAPING GAS

A family of seven in the tenement at No. 26 Springfield street, Somerville, were overcome by gas early to-day. Two women in the family are now dangerously ill as a result. The gas is believed to have backed up through the bathroom from a leaking main in the street.

All of the victims lived on the first floor of the house. In the family are Mr. and Mrs. George H. Lienhard, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Boyd, two of their children, May, six years old, and a baby two weeks old, and Miss Mary McSorley. The three women are sisters.

To-day Mrs. Lienhard and Mrs. Boyd are in a serious condition. Dr. P. M. Fitzsimons, who was called to the house when the leak was discovered, has been with them since.

About 3 a. m. May Boyd awoke. She cried for her mother and asked for a drink of water. Mrs. Boyd arose and started for the water. Suddenly she staggered. "I'm going," she said.

She sank to the floor. Her arms sought the child as she fell and the two went to the floor unconscious.

Their fall awakened other members of the family. Mr. Lienhard had sufficient strength to call to the family upstairs. Neighbors were summoned and Dr. Fitzsimons sent for. He worked over the family and succeeded in reviving all but the two women. The baby was the least affected.

To-day city officials are working in the street to find out where the leaking main is. The police are also investigating.

JUSTICE DAY'S SON IS MADE A JUDGE

WASHINGTON, April 6.—President Taft to-day nominated William R. Day, son of Associate Justice Day of the United States Supreme court, and now United States Attorney in Cleveland, to be United States Judge of the Cleveland district, succeeding the late Judge Taylor. Edward Dowman of Toledo was nominated to succeed Mr. Day. Among other nominations were E. C. Harper, collector of customs for the Puget Sound, Wash., district, and Colonel E. M. Weaver, U. S. A., to be brigadier general commanding the coast artillery corps.

TWO VICTIMS OF ESCAPING GAS IN SOMERVILLE

WILL PROTECT DIP TANK USERS

William A. Granstein, president of Granstein & Co., has issued a circular to the retail milk dealers declaring that the sale of milk in stores had fallen off 10,000,000 quarts under anti-dip tank regulations, and that the total loss had been $2,341,611.

"Some of those who received profits in the observance of the regulation no doubt will make every effort to intimidate you," the circular says, "but we will stand back of all our customers, even the smallest one, and protect him legally and otherwise, in selling his milk to his best advantage, either from dip tank, cans or bottles, providing such sales are made in a cleanly way."

"GRANDPA" IS DEAD.

James L. Whitaker, known to every child on Winter Hill, Somerville, as "Grandpa" Whitaker, died to-day after an illness of several weeks. He was eighty-four years old, being born in Woodville, Mass., June 26, 1826. He was the senior deacon of the Broadway Congregational church.

FOSS TO VETO SHORT FIREMEN

The five-for-four firemen bill for Boston firemen is threatened with Governor Foss's veto pen. The governor told Representative James H. Brennan of Charlestown today:

"I don't think I'll sign the measure."

Brennan promptly rounded up a batch of Boston legislators and invaded the Governor's chamber with them to protest against a veto.

Fire Commissioner Charles D. Daly and the members of the Civil Service Commission are said to have persuaded the Governor that he ought to veto the measure.

The bill, Senate No. 336, does not say specifically that appointees to the Boston Fire Department must not be required to be five feet seven inches or five feet eight inches in height, but that is its main purpose.

The Civil Service Commission requires candidates to be at least five feet, seven inches tall. Fire Commissioner Daly has insisted on a list of five feet, eight inches. The bill before the Governor provides that requirements for height in fire departments shall be fixed by the city council or board of selectmen, and by no one else.

The bill was reported by the Committee on Cities on three bills filed respectively by Representatives James H. Brennan of Charlestown, John H. Conners of Roxbury and William F. Hickey of South Boston.

The bills went to the Governor at 3.40 p. m. last Tuesday. If he does not sign or veto it within next Monday at the same hour it will become law automatically.

ROLLER SKATERS GET EMBANKMENT

The Metropolitan Park Commission today passed a rule which goes into effect Monday, allowing persons under the age of fourteen to skate on the granolithic sidewalk of the Charles River Embankment during the period from 8 o'clock in the forenoon to 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The commission has also passed a rule which allows persons under the age of fourteen years to skate on the granolithic walk along the northeasterly border of Lynn Shore Reservation during the same periods as in the case of Charles River Embankment.

FOUR CRACKSMEN REPULSE A POSSE

TULSA, Okla., April 6.—Following a short battle with four cracksmen, who robbed the First State Bank of Broken Arrow, after blowing the safe early to-day, a posse which pursued them for six miles was repulsed and is surrounding the robbers in the hills. Chief of Police Nowlin is on the way to join the posse with reinforcements. Following the blowing of the bank safe the robbers broke into a hardware store and stole several guns and a large quantity of ammunition.

CO-OPERATIVE FARM PROJECT

High prices for the necessities of life because of the exodus of the young folk from farm to city now seem solved through the practical application of the old socialistic theory of co-operation.

This idea is being put into practice through the energies of P. J. Evans, and Boston has again come to the front in solving one of the great social problems. For Boston is Mr. Evans's native city.

The plan is simple and allows those who consume pay for what Mother Earth produces to share in the enormous profits being made by farmers, who are now considered the most prosperous of people.

Through the life of the farmer is idealized by the imagination of the average man, he cannot always make a financial success as a gentleman farmer. Right here is where the co-operative plan steps in and shows how any one may, with limited means, no knowledge of the business and without leaving friends or occupation, reap the financial reward that has for the last few years been going to a few farmers.

The plan is: A vast tract of land has been secured in the Isle of Pines, and divided into eighty-acre tracts under the title of the Isle of Pines Co-operative Fruit Company. For convenience they term these eighty acres Series A, in which they have issued and offer for sale 400 land limited 5 per cent profit-sharing certificates at a special price of $114 each, upon small monthly terms.

Each certificate should receive an annual income of 10 per cent from the raising and sale of oranges at the time of harvest, and in addition, the profits from grapefruit trees. Conservative estimates from actual experience prove that when in full bearing the trees should make the profits on each certificate amount to from $85 to $225 yearly on an investment of $114.

Estimates for profit from grapefruit trees are based upon a selling price of $3 per box wholesale, usually the price is $5 and $6 per box.

GREAT CROWD GOES TO THE HOME SHOW

Another big crowd visited the Greater Boston Real Estate and Home Exposition in Horticultural Hall today. Not only does the exposition provide many new and interesting features and the establishment of homes, but it has resulted in an unlooked for addition by the exhibitors in the way of sales of property, the renting of estates and the acquisition of many properties which are expected to result in sales in the near future. The steel home, the full-sized brick dwelling house, completely furnished, continues to be the centre of attraction among the large throngs of visitors.

HOLY CROSS FARM HEAD IS DROWNED

WORCESTER, April 6.—Frank McLaughlin, who had charge of the farm connected with Holy Cross College, was drowned in Middle River. His body was found on the shore this morning and it is believed that he slipped down the embankment while on his way home last night. He was sixty-five years old.

TUG GOES TO AID SCHOONER

A tug was sent out this afternoon to find and to bring into port the schooner J. Manchester Hayes, long overdue, which was sighted to-day off Thatcher's Island, heading for Boston. Captain Frank Rogers of the schooner Hortense came into port and told of meeting the vessel off Georges Banks on Sunday and finding Captain R. W. Rickerson and his crew almost at the starvation point, having eaten their last biscuit that morning. The vessel was badly battered up, but Captain Rickerson declared he could reach Boston.

TEN-YEAR LIGHT CONTRACT GIVEN

Commissioner of Public Works Rourke today signed the contract submitted recently by the Rising Sun Company for the lighting of the 12,000 street and alley lights of Boston. The contract is for ten years, and the price per lamp as specified in the contract is $22.30, which is $1.30 lower than the city is now paying. The Commissioner sent the signed contract, together with the proposition submitted by the Lamplighters' Union for municipal ownership, to the City Council, for action.

"WIDOW" WILL BE ARRESTED

NEW YORK, April 6.—Surrogate Cohalan to-day ordered the arrest of Mrs. E. L. Davies, also known as Mrs. Dore, who appeared last week in the $3,000,000 will contest being waged by the children of the late General T. T. Eckert, present of the Western Union Telegraph Company, and swore that she had married Eckert in 1908. She had promised to appear with her marriage certificate, but failed to do so and the surrogate immediately declared her an adventuress and ordered her arrest.

A Badge of Honesty

Is printed on the outer wrapper of every bottle of

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

and it is the only medicine for woman's peculiar ailments sold by druggists, the makers of which feel fully warranted in thus taking the afflicted into their full confidence.

The more known about the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the more confidently will invalid women rely upon it to cure their peculiar weaknesses and derangements. There's no secrecy about its make-up—no deceptive inducements held out to the afflicted. It's simply a good, honest, square-deal medicine with no alcohol, or injurious, habit-forming drugs in its composition. Made wholly from roots. It can do no harm in any condition of woman's organism.

Devised and put up by a physician of vast experience in the treatment of woman's maladies. Its ingredients have the indorsement of leading physicians in all schools of practice.

The "Favorite Prescription" is known everywhere as the standard remedy for diseases of women and has been so regarded for the past 40 years and more.

Accept no secret nostrum in place of "Favorite Prescription"—a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, with a record of 40 years of cures behind it.

It's foolish and often dangerous to experiment with new or but slightly tested medicines—sometimes urged upon the afflicted as "just as good" or better than "Favorite Prescription." The dishonest dealer sometimes insists that he knows what the proffered substitute is made of, but you don't and it is decidedly for your interest that you should know what you are taking into your stomach and system expecting it to act as a curative. To him its only a difference of profit. Therefore, insist on having Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Send 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only on a free copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages cloth-bound.

W. R. HEARST TELLS WHY HE SUPPORTED CARTER HARRISON

CHICAGO, April 6. The Tribune to-day prints the following signed statement by William Randolph Hearst:

"My fight is against corrupt bosses and against the privilege-seeking corporations that own and operate the corrupt bosses.

"I am naturally a Democrat and make my fight as a Democrat wherever the Democratic party is committed to pure politics and progressive principles.

"I supported Carter Harrison with enthusiasm because he stood sincerely and squarely upon a strongly progressive platform and because his election meant the defeat and expulsion of corrupt political bosses who have long dominated and disgraced the Democratic organization in this city.

Mr. Harrison's election means a new Democracy, a Democracy in tune with the best thought and highest means of this era of progress and reform.

"I rejoice in Mr. Harrison's election not merely as a partisan of Mr. Harrison's, but as a citizen of that country.

"I believe that Mr. Harrison's election is a forward step in the progressive movement sweeping over the country, and I believe this every such forward step is of great and permanent benefit to the citizenship and the nation."

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

RUSTLERS WILL TRY ONCE MORE TO PLAY TO-DAY

It Really Was a Shame, at That, to Let Jeff Suffer — By "Bud" Fisher

TRIS SPEAKER SENT TO BOSTON FOR REST

By MERTON E. BURKE,
American Correspondent with Red Sox on "Coast-to-Coast" Tour.

MERTON E. BURKE.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 6.—A sudden change of plans regarding the shipping of the two Red Sox outfits, which are touring the middle West, make it impossible for the so-called "Regulars" to reach Boston until April 20, the Colts arriving home on April 11 to play Hartford, while the Regulars go direct from Chicago to Washington. This seems a needless trip for the Regulars, however, that is a possibility the Regulars will go direct to Washington. This seems a needless trip for the trip from Chicago to Boston and so from there to Washington in two flights would seem a fine on the staying powers of the players and might weaken the team for their league games.

They're in Missouri.

Today the Regulars make camp here, coming from Topeka. The Colts left on the call board for Sioux City, where they have two games and will go to Omaha on Sunday. After seeing Lincoln the entire party are now in Sioux City and Omaha. We're in Missouri now and we're got to be shown.

The Regulars, by the way, did show the Colts a thing or two yesterday when they took to the ice-rolling floors. In spite of Ed Karger's two home runs over a fence that never been a mile away, Jones got in step at last, turned out two doubles, Karger pitched the losing ball game and the Regulars won, 8 to 6. Arellanes finished in the ninth in great fashion. He was relieved by Hall, who was touched for a run and a hit, but Hall makes him very peevish.

Perry's Charley Horse and a little grouch he has been nursing against a reporter's reasonableness, have disappeared, he doesn't suppose of his recent returns, got so bad yesterday he couldn't finish the game. He'll come around with a little rousing, however.

Lincoln, in spite of the great Commoner, is enough to give any one a goiter. Democrats, Democrats, Democrats and State Farm. Take your choice, gentlemen. Some of the boys made a pilgrimage to Bryan's home but came back licking their chops and not a little free silver.

Repartee by Cupid.

On the way out Cupid Burns, our dandy little umpire, was very much pleased with a lady. "I don't mind the cold and the wet," she said, "but I know what sport young men is." She jumped up. I would love to the group and said: "Will you be my valentine?" Cupid pleaded with her to go and get a drink yet.

North Dakota is richer even than California or Texas.

Red Sox Win Again.

PORTERA, Kan., April 6.—Manager Donovan's Boston Red Sox Regulars made it seventeen successive victories by defeating the Topeka All-Stars here this afternoon, 8 to 6. Not until the ninth inning, with two down, did a home run reach second base and not a man get as far as third in the game for the West Siders. Carroll struck pitching with the game for two singles and a pass, and Bentley, making the last three innings for the pass and two singles.

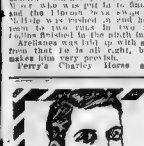
The Reds went to pieces in the ninth and a nine all round hitting which they seemed to relish after the two days of forced layoff.

Mays all round work was excellent. The boy certainly has the making of a good pitcher.

Manager Donovan now has seventeen men with his Regulars, fourteen of whom are to be taken to Boston.

This Speaker has left here for Boston. He will make up the team to play here until the regular season opens and Manager Donovan expected to be in Boston until Thursday, when he leaves for Washington next Thursday.

Speaker has a cold that he has tried hard to shake since the team left Los Angeles but in vain and he was delighted this afternoon when Donovan consented to let him go to Boston to see Dr. Todd. Speaker will pitch one of the games at St. Joseph and then come to Boston for a short visit, from there he will go to Washington, ready to pitch the first game of the season in Griffith's in fine shape.



Ycu Handle the Holder— Not the Soap

When you lather your face with L-S Spiral Shaving Soap you do not remove the soap from the holder. Slightly turn the bottom of the holder and the end of the stick comes out. You grasp the holder in your hand and rub your beard with the soap as illustrated above. We think you will like the

L-S SPIRAL SHAVING STICK AND HOLDER

"Your hand never touches the soap—there is no paper or cinfoil to unwrap, no soft, slippery stick that is difficult to grasp.

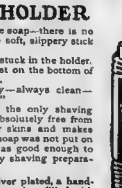
The L-S stick cannot get stuck in the holder. As the soap wears down, a twist on the bottom of the holder pushes it farther out.

The L-S soap is always dry—always clean—always firm—never "squdgy."

The soap itself is perhaps the only shaving soap on the market that is absolutely free from caustic. It is kind to tender skins and makes tough beards cut easily. L-S soap was not put on the market until we knew it was good enough to compete successfully with any shaving preparation in the world.

The L-S Holder, heavily silver plated, a handsome toilet article of permanent value, filled with two L-S sticks, 50c. In Nickel, filled with two sticks, 25c. Refilling sticks only 10c each.

For sale wherever shaving soap is sold



The remarkable non-caustic qualities of L-S Spiral Shaving Soap are also employed in the making of L-S Creme Rio Dulce soap. Sold in sanitary sealed packages, 25c.

DIAMOND DITTIES

The Oldest Player

By DAMON RUNYON

1. THE Oldest Player on the team
sits back and softly sighs
While Youth, with nerve and sugar, carort before his eyes.
Youth, lithe and slim, and full of vim,
with arms like tempered steel
The Oldest Player cracks his joints and moans a mournful spiel

"WELL, my charley-horse is patent, and my paunch is like a shelf,
I'm old and slow and cannot throw,
I'm nowhere at myself
The Youth deride; with lavish pride
they steam 'em up so soon
How fast you go in April, boys!
Do you go so fast in June?"

THE Oldest Player on the team
strikes out on roundhouse curves—
A "sucker" for the slow ones, and the speed despoils his nerves;
The speed they waste in Youth's mad haste; they hear his aged croon
"You have so much in April, boys; have you got so much in June?"

"WELL, my fielding lamps are feeble now beneath the southern sun,
I cannot judge, I cannot catch, behold
I cannot run!
I cannot bat—I am so fat—my joints
creak out of tune—
I'm not so good in April, boys, but I'll be there in June!"

LEAHY, CAMBRIDGE BOY, GOES TO GRAYS

Dan Leahy of Cambridge, one of the best outfielders developed in that city in recent years, has been secured by the Grays, it is reported to Manager James Coffey. This will be his first attempt among the fast ones, for Dan thinks he is not yet good enough. He has played with several semi-pro and sandlot professional nines throughout the State for the last four or five years.

BOSTON SCHOOL BOYS TRIED BY HAVERHILL

Two Boston boys will have chances in the box for the Haverhill team of the New England League this season. "Win" Duffy of Dorchester and Ben Green of Charlestown. Duffy was tried out by Providence last year and after a while went to Worcester, where he did well until he hurt his arm. Ben Green is a former English High School pitcher. He also was tried out by Providence last year.

NEW ENGLAND LEAGUE MEETS NEXT MONDAY

The Spring meeting of the New England League of Professional Baseball Clubs will be held at the New American House, Hanover street, Boston, Monday, April 10, at 11 o'clock a. m.

Each club is entitled to two delegates. The umpires for the season will be announced at this meeting, and the committee on official ball will make its report.

PLANS HANDICAP MEET.

It is figured that the track and field athletes of the English High School are strong for the indoor season of Boston and as a result the annual track and field championships, which are to be held at Wood Island Park, East Boston, Saturday, June 3, will be handicapped. The events will be the same as last year and the boys will be divided into three classes.

STEINFELD IS SOLD.

CHICAGO, April 6.—Jack Steinfeld, the former third baseman of the Chicago Nationals, has been sold to the Cincinnati League team and will report to Manager Mathewson in New Orleans. Steinfeld, who is a protege of Comiskey, was with the Chicago team since 1905, and it is the second return from baseball and other business in Cincinnati.

COLE ILL WITH MALARIA.

DANVILLE, Ill., April 6.—Leonard Cole, better known as "King" Cole, of the Chicago National ball team, was taken ill here and will probably remain in this city until Monday. A physician diagnosed his case as malaria in a mild form.

TENNEY CONFERS WITH HAMILTON

By R. W. LARDNER
American Correspondent with Rustlers on Southern Tour.

R.W. LARDNER.

NORFOLK, Va., April 6.—Newport News has been presented with a baseball team and our little town is all excited over baseball. Even the ladies are interested. Of course, this fact, however, will not keep the Red Sox from winning all the games they play here, but it is interesting reading to know that baseball is the popular sport in Newport News.

Investigation reveals the fact that the latter city's ball club is a member of the Tide Water League, which is another name for the good will of the National Association and National Commission. Having been admitted to the league, Manager Tenney is trying to get the other eastern clubs and Mr. Hubbs was kind enough to stop off the boys and provide an opening for the Rustlers in the person of his own team.

Drawing Small Crowds.

You see, if the Rustlers had kept their date at Newport News they might have drawn a couple of the cash only to find themselves out a couple hundred bones for the privilege of commissioning mandates. Hence, I am telling you crowds in these parts at present are not the thing. Famine now reigning is in progress. The National people would have an even chance with the Federals if they could get a couple of the fans who pay their way in. Why, I'll bet there are more people in this town who don't know there is a baseball league than there are who do know it. Of course, I'm not including the entire population of Norfolk, for they all know about baseball, but I'm speaking of the people in the rest of the world.

Manager Tenney is trying to get the entire league to Norfolk for a day, but I don't think he will succeed. I've been here a week and have only been able to find one fan who knows that baseball is a game played with a bat and ball. I'm willing to bet that Tenney himself will have to be told what baseball is before he leaves town.

Manager Tenney's desire to have the league in Norfolk is good, figuring that two days will be better than one. But I'm afraid he will be disappointed in the result. I've been here a week and have only been able to find one fan who knows that baseball is a game played with a bat and ball. Some Things Worse Than Divorce

By DOROTHY DIX

Is there anything worse than a loveless marriage that ends in divorce?

Is it not better, or at least not quite so bad, rather than have the law step in to open the door of freedom to a man or woman who has tired of his or her mate, and has found a new one?

If divorce were altogether abolished would not the number of unions be enormously increased?

As great an evil as divorce is, is it not perhaps a lesser evil than the temptation to slay the husband or wife who could be gotten rid of in no other manner?

These questions are hotly propounded to those who are radically opposed to divorce, and it is true that those people are married, no matter how ill mated they prove to be, no matter how easy it would be for each other, they always must remain like wheel of torture as long as they live.

From a high ethical standpoint this may be true. Possibly the unhappily married should suffer and be strong, and endure, but, alas, poor human nature is weak and given to selfishly seeking its own good even at the expense of others. Hence the question arises, If those stern moralists who would do away altogether with divorce would but read the records before the crime is committed, the Spartan matrimonial machine would be scrapped in favor of the old easy-going method.

In proof wherof consider these three cases:

Some Noted Cases

The details of a sensational trial are still fresh in our memories in which a woman married to a very wealthy man of whom she was tired, and desperately enamored of a handsome young fellow, was accused of trying to slay the husband by means of poison, so that she might be free to marry her boy love.

This scheme never attempted to get a divorce. But sugar of lead and arsenic were found mysteriously placed in her husband's drinking water and medicine.

Still more recent is the case of Matthew E. Vansaman of Reading, Pa., who is accused of having buried his wife to death in order that he might marry a young wife.

These two cases, in which a wife and husband are accused of trying to free themselves from their marriage bonds by their own efforts, instead of calling in the help of the law, make a rather cynical pro-divorce argument, do they not?

Until as divorce is, it has cures where one of the parties still loves while the other has ceased to love. It is not so cruel as murder, and there are few of us who would not prefer a divorce absolute to the chances of being poisoned or buried alive as we sleep.

Certainly, it would give a very sinister significance to that paragraph in the marriage ritual which says that a man and woman are bound together "until DEATH do them part." If there was no other way than the guillotine or the electric chair established to cut the matrimonial chain that not only binds but has come to gall.

For the heart is not a thing to be coerced by law. Love cannot be ruled by logic, nor can affection be driven along the line of duty. Millions of men and women are women that, who make mistakes in marriage. Husbands and wives of whom wives will weary of their husbands.

They Will Meet Mates

And hearts, starved at home, will go abroad seeking the love that is the keynote of life. Somehow, by accident or design, the mismated will meet their mates. The great sound man married to a fair, frivolous little doll will find the woman of broad intelligence who understands him, and he loving no more. The high minded, sensible woman, married to a hulking brute, will meet the man whose sympathy ditties are every mood, or perhaps two will see who were drawn together by an almost irresistible physical attraction.

These are common tragedies of marriage that we see every day, and we men whose lives are made tolerable to them by nagging wives are laughing jeers of husbands—for none age is just as often an earthly purgatory as it is a paradise on earth.

Is it not probable then under such conditions as these that love should die? Is it not more instead of being a curse, is a blessing? If those misfortunates who are married were denied a safe, civil and and humane way of breaking out of their prisonment would they not have their way to freedom by fair and foul means?

Would any save the most exceptionally fine, married couple dare to trust their life's happiness to each other if they did not know the dissolution of that union was a case of tickets for Reno were sold on sale, and that prosecutors for any one to search for her husband in order to get rid of an undesirable partner?

Why, how would it be if the only possible way of freeing oneself from a marriage that had grown irksome was to murder the husband or wife who is tired of his wife, and [illegible] tired of her husband? Would there be any more [illegible] Would not [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Desperate Desmond

I MUST STEAL THAT GAL, BOYS. IF SHE REFUSES ME, WE WILL KILL HER AND HER LOVER CLAUDE IN THAT LIGHT-HOUSE!
WE ESCAPED DESMOND ALRIGHT
I'LL SMOKE THEM OUT! AND WHEN THEY TRY TO JUMP INTO THE SEA, THEY WILL BE PIERCED BY YOUR SHARP SPEARS, HA, HA, HA!
MORRIS! WE JUMP ME WILL BE CAUSED BY DESMOND'S ACCOMPLICES
THIS EMERGENCY STEEL MATTRESS MUST WILL FOIL DESMOND'S
THEY ARE TRAPPED AND WE'LL DIE LIKE RATS, HA, HA, HA!
LUCK'S IM FOILED! BUT AFT I'LL KILL ME WIFE LOVE!
GOOD THING WE TOOK THESE SPEARS ALONG, ROSAMOND!

Claude and Rosamond fondly imagine themselves safe from the machinations of Desperate Desmond, now that they are within the walls of the lighthouse, but, as you see, they are mistaken. The villain is after them, and he has his gang with him. What chance has the lovers against a tough bunch like that?

Desmond's plan is simple, but bids fair to be effective. He is setting fire to the lighthouse, hoping that surrender to a place with wild men armed with long spears. When Claude and Rosamond attempt to jump out of the window, as they must to escape the fire, they will be transfixed by the spears.

Fortunately, the lovers have sense enough to look before they leap, which is always a good plan. It may not help them much, but at least they know what they are up against. They have the choice of two desperate modes of death. Which do you suppose they will choose? Don't ask us. We don't know.

It's a mighty tough proposition either way you look at it, if they jump down on the spears it will be over in about two seconds, while if they wait for the fire to reach them the sufferings will be prolonged. But wait! There's something at the window. Perhaps Claude has found a way out of the dilemma.

Yes, dear reader, he has. He has also found a boat, which the keeper has stored away in case of emergency. And if this isn't an emergency, we don't know what is. Perhaps you think the spears are going to pierce the bottom of the boat, but we are glad to inform you that the boat is made of tempered steel.

Claude is taking no chances this time. Both he and Rosamond are attired in diving suits, so that, even if the boat should capsize, they can walk ashore in safety. Still, even this precaution may not be sufficient to save them from the vengeance of Desperate Desmond. We shall see. Look out for to-morrow's pictures.

All fruit salads are improved by marinating in French dressing, though later served with mayonnaise.

Instead of the individual pate, it is more popular now to pass one or two large pates, each guest serving herself. Fill with mushrooms, oysters, or creamed sweetbreads.

Biscuits or French rolls for formal use are more diminutive than ever. The former should be the size of a fifty-cent piece and a quarter of an inch thick.

A delicious salad is made from different nuts, white grapes, a little shredded grape fruit, pineapple cut into cubes, and shredded celery. Mash in mayonnaise or serve with a cream dressing.

When a boiled egg is the usual breakfast dish vary it by breaking it raw into the egg cup and cooking in hot water to the desired consistency. The flavor is quite different than when cooked in the shell.

Fingers of bread about four inches long, quarter of an inch wide, and the same thickness, buttered thickly and browned in a quick oven, are delicious to serve with boiled eggs.

Salad is now usually passed in a salad dish, but when served directly on the individual plates an appetizing and artistic effect can be had by making nests of shredded lettuce or endive, in which are eggs made of cream cheese colored with spinach juice and sprinkled thickly with paprika or black pepper. Cover with mayonnaise.

In baking a cake sift the flour in the batter and you will have a much more tender cake.

Good cranberries cannot be made if the sugar is allowed to boil in with the berries. After the cranberries are well and strained through a colander add a scant pound of sugar to a quart of berries, bring to a boil, and cook four minutes. Put three-quarters of a pint of boiling water on the berries when first cooked.

A Good Brassiere

Many stout women object to wearing the brassiere because of its warmth. A new model that gives the same support takes the place of a corset cover and is comfortable and easily adjusted.

The lower part is of heavy muslin, or longcloth, cut in two parts, the front heavily boned and made firm with bias strippings. The backs cut to overlap and form a V at the neck. Taped on the end go through an eyelet at side and tie in front.

The brassiere comes just to the waist line and is held down firmly by a tab and nickel hook that glides over one of the corset hooks.

The top of front is cut in a straight line reaching from under the arms at the side seam, and above it is a trimmed yoke of sheerer material, made of alternate strips of insertion and handwork. Lace and beading finish the edge.

One advantage is the reinforcement under the arms with a shield-shaped piece of the material. Stout women who rub their underwaist into holes find this welcome.

Love Stories From Life

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

She had risen at 5 o'clock that morning, the baby was sick and required attention.

It was ironing day. There were three children to get ready for school and the breakfast work to do, and at 9 o'clock, with four hours' hard work behind her and twelve hours' work ahead, she took a shirt out of a basket piled to overflowing with clothes to be ironed, put it on the board and turned to the stove for a hot iron.

On her way back she paused at the window, and saw, on their way to work downtown, two girls with whom she had formerly worked in an office.

They were fashionably dressed; they wore new hats.

One carried a bunch of violets, and both were so filled with the joy of living that they laughed and talked in the same breath.

If the day ahead held any cares for them they didn't know it.

It was bright and bracing out, and when the woman turned back to her work the kitchen seemed dingy and stifling in contrast.

Grabbing a hot iron with one hand, with the other she slapped her son of three, who was pouring water on the baby, kicked the cat from under her feet, and began to iron her husband's shirt.

"At least," she said, lifting the temperature of the iron with her tears, her mind reverting to the two girls who had just passed, "I am ahead of them in one thing, I know what it means to have won the Love of a Man."

A Story of Love and Tragedy, by E. Nesbit. Copyright by loubleday, Page and Company

From the last movement she was to dance the Salome. She danced each dance for five evenings and no more. She whetted public expectancy; she then declined it. The dances were for Denny's music.

And as her success grew higher and higher her lover's heart grew heavier and heavier. What his solicitor had bid to tell him had added no joy to life.

But the heart of Uncle Moses rejoiced. His solicitor had let the same hopeless tale to tell. And Uncle Moses perceived that Sylvia's hope of happiness lay in work—in successful work—in fame and not in love.

Also his pride was engaged. He had "run" Sylvia, and she had succeeded, as adventurers which he financed had a way of doing. The jewelled gifts, too, heaped high, and he swept up, every night of her dancing, a cent per cent. profit on sums not negligible.

She had conquered the world, and she was fleecing Mammon. He was getting his percentage—a royal one. And besides and beyond that, he loved the girl. That was her distinguishing characteristic when all was said and done—everyone loved her.

She had yielded now to the entreaties of the management of the Hilarity. It was no longer four days in the week that she danced, but five, and it would have been all but for Uncle Moses and Aunt Dusa, who insisted on at least two days of rest. And the week's holiday came once in four weeks now, instead of once in three.

London Crowds to the Dance

As usual in August, London was empty, but it was crowded all the same, crowded with people who wanted to see Sylvia dance. For a heart in the condition which we term broken there is no medicine like work—indeed, it is the best opiate in the world for all pain, except the pain of overwork itself.

Drug-taking is dangerous, as all men know, because of the hold that the drug takes upon one's nerves and one's will. Life without the drug soon grows to seem not worth having. Presently the only thing worth having in life appears to be the drug. Later the life IS the drug—and nothing else.

Sylvia was fast nearing the point where she must either weaken and break down from overwork, or harden and crystallise into a talented professional. So far her highest, deepest, most irresistible charm had been that she was an amateur of genius.

Fate's next move came in time to save her from both these melancholy alternatives.

The move was announced to Sylvia as a correspondence-chess move might have been, by a letter.

It lay, with a heap of others, on the long, broad table that ran under the mirror in her dressing-room at the theatre. It lay on the top, and it probably owed its position to the peculiarity of its envelope. It was a "business" envelope—a large oblong, and it was black-edged, very black-edged.

The blackness lay not only in a St. Andrew's cross upon its back, but as a border upon the face, framing the address in a sable setting.

Now people who write adulation to dancers are not usually in mourning mood. Sylvia then, first decided that here was a begging letter. And being kind-hearted and already dressed in the sea-weed tunic of her sea dance, and having nothing to do till her call came, which was delayed by a triple encore to a man who sang comic songs standing on his head on the back of a pig, she opened it.

And when she had read it she turned pale, and clasped her hands to her heart, just like a heroine of melodrama. Because melodrama, after all, is roughly founded on life. Then her hands dropped by her sides, and her face slowly and beautifully grew paler and paler under its rouge, till it became a very rose of joy.

Then her call came. She hid the letter under the cover of her table and went. And when she stood in the soft clever light smiling her acknowledgment of her reception, the applause rose to a clamor.

And with reason—for she was twice as beautiful as she had ever been before. And she knew it, which instantly made her more beautiful still.

The Magic of Love

The sense of well-being, which comes from doing perfectly what one always does well hipped Sylvia in a glow of good spirits. More, it was as though the skin that clothed her body had been changed to some close-fitting, coloured fabric whose every thread was spun of pure joy, an infinite web of wonder caressing her, all over, with a live, pure delight.

"If only he could see me now," she thought. And then the magic of her dance shut out all thought, leaving nothing but that soft, close, delicious sense of accurate spontaneous perfection.

As it happened, he was there. He could see her. He had been unable to avoid coming, not to the gallery in the wig and crape hair disguise which now began to seem to be not only ridiculous—it had already been that—but unnecessary. She was so wrapped up in her dancing, he told himself, that she would never notice him even if he occupied the box he had always longed for.

He had, by Fate's decree, to take that box. Fate drove him to it. She and the uncle had come to town en route for some holiday place abroad, and, being in town, nothing would serve but that dear Edmund, after dining with them at Morley's, should take them to see this new dancer.

"This Sylvia, as they call her," said the aunt expressively.

Templar fought feebly, but the only weapon that could have protected him would have been a previous appointment, and he had unfortunately admitted, earlier in the engagement, that he was free this evening. He thought of being taken suddenly ill, but he knew that that would involve the invasion and occupation of his rooms by the hostile forces, and he felt that to be nursed by his aunt, when he had nothing the matter with him except a broken heart, which he could not disclose, would be the unbearable last straw.

Dreaded the Ordeal

For a thousand reasons, he dreaded and detested the occupation of that stage box in company with his relations. The chance that they would not recognize in "Sylvia, as they call her" the poor little Alexandra Mundy of eight years ago seemed to him of the slenderest.

And how could he hear their wonder, their interest, their surmises, their conclusions? But he telephoned to engage that box—only to learn what he had expected, that it had been booked a fortnight ago, together with every other seat in the house.

"So we can't go after all," he said, coming back into the hotel lounge: "every seat engaged. We must try something else—there's a very bright little thing at the Frivolity—quite charming music, I believe."

"Opera?" the uncle heavily queried.

"Musical comedy," said the aunt, sweetly. "I saw it in the papers. I don't bear musical comedies—they're all vulgar and they're all silly, I think. Besides, I've set my heart on seeing this girl. I can't believe all that about her . . . you

Men More Emotional Than Women

A London nerve specialist in discussing the statement made recently by Lord Scarborough that "men as a whole are quite as emotional as women," has expressed an unpublic opinion that men are by nature more emotional than women. Only by centuries of training and hard fighting, he said, had men acquired the power of suppressing their emotions and resisting the desire to burst into tears.

The author of this theory even suggested that man's real place was the home, and that women, who can face a crisis better than men because they are less emotional and possess more native presence of mind, should be the bread-winners.

"The old-established opinion that women are more emotional than men is really a fallacy," he said. "Men are more inclined to shriek and become hysterical during exciting, trying times than the gentler sex.

"Women have the reputation of 'losing their heads' in emotional crises, but this is quite a mistaken idea. In sudden emergencies, sudden illnesses and real danger women always shine.

"Men have not that natural and instinctive presence of mind which women possess. If the truth were told the majority of men would confess that their emotions are more susceptible, more easily moved than those of their wives.

"Man's coolness and apparent nonchalance on exciting occasions is only surface deep. Inwardly he is trembling with nervousness and emotional fear. I venture to say that the majority of women on similar occasions would be perfectly self-possessed and mentally calm and alert.

"In my experience women are on the whole harder hearted than men. Woman does not feel so deeply as a man; she is not so susceptible to the influence of other people."

Religious Advertising

It is surprising how an idea will bring results. A hint dropped here, a suggestion made there, will often bear fruit in new methods of doing business.

This is especially true of advertising. A short while ago we ran in these columns an article upon advertising churches and told the story of how a Sunday School was built up by means of a rival promotion scheme.

Only recently the Boston papers had an announcement that one of the evangelical bodies had voted to spend $125,000 in a national campaign to effect a more rapid spread of religion. The details were so carefully worked out that in every city a sum of money ranging from a few thousand to ten or eleven thousand dollars was to be expended.

Advertising, after all, is nothing more than information, and why shouldn't the churches inform people as to the value of their information? Surely spiritual information is more valuable than material information, and if material information can be promulgated by advertising, why should not spiritual information be spread broadcast in the same way?

The religious bodies to-day which are most virile are those which reach the people, so the advertising mediums are most forceful for the money, and most forceful for the religious bodies which reach the greatest mass of the people in any given centre.

The religious body that thinks the cut and dried old-fashioned newspaper is the one in which to advertise makes a serious mistake. The newspaper in which to advertise is the paper which reaches all classes of people. No paper has such a general circulation as the Boston Evening American. Each day it is read by nearly 400,000 people. It is by all odds the best paper for the churches as well as the merchants to use.

SPEED WARNING IN SOMERVILLE

By J. C. KERRISON.

Chief Kendall of the Somerville police has issued a warning to the drivers of motor vehicles passing through that city. Owing to the numerous complaints that have been received by his department against the fast driving of cars through Cross and other streets in Somerville, he has been forced to instruct his officers to put an end to it.

Violations of the speed law have been numerous during the past three or four weeks and Somerville citizens have been insistent that he take some action.

The street on which the greatest danger is reported to exist is Cross street, an asphalt street with two sets of car tracks, at the best a rather dangerous thoroughfare and a cross-reference on which motorists need to exercise some little care, owing to the numerous interesting streets and the great amount of traffic in that locality.

Timely warning is given for the benefit of motorists, as it is fully realized that a little precaution on their part will save a whole lot of trouble, not only for themselves, but for the police department and the pedestrians in general.

E. L. Vail, Boston manager of the Splitdorf Laboratory, returned yesterday from the Atlantic Pablo Beach contests thereabout Don Smith, who uses the Splitdorf magnetos and the American cars in general.

It says that in the four days of racing held primarily for the purpose of allowing foreign cars built especially for speed to achieve records in this country, the National "40" stock car and the Pope-Hartford 6-speed and the Mercer car each had only ones to break any world's records. The National "40," Harry Walter Cox broke the world's stock chassis record, and Pope-Hartford and the Mercer cut a few seconds, six thirds and five fourth prizes, declaring that Hose from Benz and other high-priced foreign cars in grand shape.

None of these records and victories were earned by what might be turned fakes, but by hard-fought, proper effort.

The work of the Pope-Hartford special, equipped with the Splitdorf magneto, in beating the 300-mile race, in which she broke the 200, 250, 300 and 250-mile world's records, averaging 70.8 miles per hour for the full distance, was as brilliant a performance as has ever been witnessed.

It was rather a noteworthy fact that the Nationals, and the Pope-Hartford and likewise the Mercer were all equipped with the Splitdorf double distributor magneto, which was found on fifteen of the twenty winners during this race.

Mr. Vail will next visit the Indianapolis speed race, taking up his headquarters in that city on the first of May.

R. A. Dobyns has assumed the duties as assistant secretary of the Bay State Automobile Association.

Harry Lozier of the Lozier Motor Car Company spent yesterday in Boston looking over the local situation. Mr. Lozier spent considerable time in company with Local Manager Gormenley, the two going over the great matters of interest to Lozier and the Lozier Company's patrons, and that in a short time. It is surmised, make no interesting announcement.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

NEW YORK, April 6.—The stock market opened quiet to-day with unimportant price changes. Early trading indicated that the market would show activity in only a few specialties. American Can preferred was the strongest feature in the initial trading, its strength coming from the report of a dividend increase to 6 per cent. U. S. Steel was heavy, on account of the Stanley resolution in Congress demanding an investigation of the Steel Trust. Steel's opening price was unchanged from last night. Canadian Pacific, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific likewise were unchanged. Northern Pacific was up ¼ and Reading was off ¼. Union Pacific eased off after trading began, going fractionally under last night's close.

The curb market opened moderately active and steady. Americans in the London market were inactive, moving in a narrow range.

NEW LOW RECORD FOR COPPER METAL

The copper metal market is very disappointing from a producers' standpoint. While recent sales have been substantial, the demand has not been sufficient to meet the supply, and as consumers are now out of the market, prices have materially weakened. While the Amalgamated agency has put restored its price of 12¼c, the metal market is weak and copper can be purchased as low as 12¼c, thirty days, which is the same as a 12-cent market. Not since January, 1909, has copper sold at 12 cents, then it touched 11.60.

Let Us Have the Investigation of the Elevated by the State---It Is a Plain Matter of Business

The bill accompanying the petition of Mr. Thomas A. Niland called House Number 1,365 provides that the Governor shall appoint three men who shall constitute a commission to investigate the business and financial methods and condition of the Foston Elevated Railroad.

Such an investigation OUGHT TO HAVE BEEN MADE LONG AGO because, by the charter of the Elevated, the State is to share with the Elevated all dividends declared in excess of six per cent. Such a provision requires the Elevated to declare higher dividends if it is earning higher dividends, or if it is capable of earning higher dividends. The State has never profited by this profit-sharing device and does not know, of its own knowledge, why no profits have come to it under this arrangement. The State has been TAKING FOR GRANTED the representations of the Elevated Railroad concerning its financial condition, without making any proper investigation on its own account.

This is not business-like. The State OUGHT TO MAKE ITS OWN INVESTIGATION, and learn from its own inquiry why it is not sharing any profits with the Elevated, and if there are no profits to share, it should learn whether or not a change of business methods could not produce profits.

But beyond the obvious duty of the State to keep itself intimately acquainted with the methods and condition of the Elevated Railroad, because it is in a sense a partner of the road, there is also this year an added reason for an investigation. The Elevated is asking now to be relieved of rents which it is now paying for the subways in Boston and it is asking for this relief on the ground that it cannot afford to continue the payment of these rents and also assume the rents of any new subways.

No one in this community wants the Elevated to do business at a loss. But no one wants the Elevated to shirk any service which it can afford to give. If the Elevated's financial condition forbids it to increase its financial burdens by assuming the rents of new subways without a decrease in the present rents of the old subways, then the present rents of the old subway ought to be decreased.

But who knows that the Elevated cannot afford to take on these new subways? Only the Elevated. The PUBLIC DOES NOT KNOW AND HAS NO MEANS OF KNOWING except by some such investigation as the Niland bill provides. It is understood that the Public Franchise League, the Chamber of Commerce and various local improvement societies all favor such an investigation.

LET US HAVE IT.

No Man Should Have a Right to Cut His Mother Out of His Will

In Detroit a very old woman brought suit to get for herself, and more especially for her four daughters, part of a large fortune left by her son, William McConville. The man at his death left a large fortune, and left not a cent to his mother or his four sisters. The mother tried to break the will, and in our humble opinion the will SHOULD be broken. It ought to be broken into at least five pieces—one for the mother and one for each of the sisters.

The mother sued without any bitterness toward her son. He was a man addicted to wearing large diamonds and was finally hit on the head and killed by a highwayman attracted by those diamonds.

His mother, seventy-eight years of age, says quite patiently that her son was a strange man. But she thinks that as she had eleven children, and took good care of HIM and gave him the strength to earn his fortune, some of it ought to belong to her.

We agree with her thoroughly. Further, we believe that it ought to be illegal in this country for ANY man to cut his mother out of his will or fail to provide for her decently if he has enough money to do that.

The claim of a mother should in law equal that of a wife or of any child, and it ought to be among decent human beings superior to the wife's claim or the children's claim.

The law gives to the wife part of the money that her husband leaves behind him, on the ground that she has shared her life with the husband.

What about the mother who has given the life to her son, the mother that made him, the mother to whom he owes all the power and success that he has had?

It is utterly preposterous that the law should permit the disinheriting of mothers.

We should all have a pretty poor opinion of Adam, even after he was put out of the garden, if he had made a will and failed to leave anything to his Creator.

We ought to feel utter contempt for the man who dies and fails to provide—if he is able to provide—for the mother that created him. And the laws ought to make this illegal.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

LAND TAX BEST OF ALL

Editor AMERICAN:

I believe in the uttermost free trade, and must consequently believe in reciprocity with Canada, and I hope very heartily that it may come to pass.

Nevertheless, I prophesy that it will not help the people of either country much, nor for long.

There is a law of economics by which the rent of land, or, more slangfully speaking, the price of land, goes up as the necessities of life become cheaper; and also at the same time that land goes up wages come down.

But, alas! the cure for the high price of land is not to raise the price of necessities. The only effect of that is to withdraw even more land out of use to wait for more population, more improvements, more inventions, that will again bring the land to its high rate.

The only way to throw the cheaper land again on the market and into use is to tax it. Then the landholder must either use his land, so as to make its expenses, or he must sell it cheap to some one who will use it.

Only the use of land products are increased, and increased products mean cheaper products, thus giving more purchasing power to wages. By the use of land labor is employed, thus reducing the ranks of the unemployed, and so raising wages. The use of land lowers the rents of houses, thus giving the higher wages even a greater purchasing power, and, in short, setting the whole machinery of production into brisk motion.

JULIA GOLDZIER.

TIME RIPE FOR RESTORATION OF AMERICAN MERCHANT MARINE

Editor AMERICAN:

Practically all the authorities in the industrial and banking world are agreed that the country is passing through a period of readjustment, and that there will be in 1911 a quiescent state of trade. It is very natural, therefore, that American products should be seeking foreign markets in such a period of domestic lassitude in order that they may continue operations at something approaching the "full-time" basis.

The further knowledge that has so often been emphasized by Alvin Barrett, director of the International Bureau of American Republics, that the twenty Latin-American republics offer a market for the use of American goods to the extent of $1,000,000,000 a year—has caused a wide recognition of the need of an adequate American mercantile steamship service to those ports to facilitate the forwarding of freight and the harnessing of our South American trade.

It is no longer a question of selling only our surplus products abroad—it has now reached the point where the present existing national business conservatism makes it imperative that we seek a more legitimate and lasting position in the realms of the world's trade, and so insure the operation of all our American laboring forces and the continued investment of American capital.

The time is indeed opportune for the restoration of the American commercial navy.

No Mystery Is Too Baffling for Him

A MOTOR BOAT RAN FULL SPEED INTO MY BOAT-HOUSE PIER,— NOTHING IN IT BUT A HAT AND COAT.
WE'LL HAVE A LOOK AT HER!
LOOKS LIKE FOUL PLAY!
SEE! SHE ALMOST CUT THE PIER IN TWO!
THE TIDE'S PRETTY STRONG! I GUESS SHE DRIFTED!
YES WATSO, BUT THE TIDE'S RUNNING IN THE OTHER DIRECTION!
THIS HAT WAS BOUGHT IN CHELSEA
JUMP IN, WATSO, AND WE'LL TAKE THIS BOAT BACK WHERE IT CAME FROM!
STEER FOR THAT EMPTY BOAT HOUSE! THE NAME CORRESPONDS WITH THE NAME OF THIS BOAT!
HERE'S YOUR MOTOR BOAT! NEXT TIME YOU WANT TO JUMP IN BEFORE YOU TURN ON THE POWER!
I DIDN'T THINK SHE'D START SO EASY!
ATE ATE, SIR!
IT'S BONEHEADO!
SA DIE

The Election in Chicago—

It Proves Among Other Things That the People Have the Power and Can Use It When They Will

Carter Harrison was elected Mayor of Chicago on Tuesday by a large majority.

A short time before the election gamblers in New York were betting eight to five that Harrison would not be elected. They bet eight to five that the Gas Trust, which opposed Harrison, would prove stronger than Harrison and his friends. THE GAMBLERS LOST THEIR MONEY. They underestimated the people.

Harrison's election was a double defeat for corporations and a double proof of the people's power to get results if they care to take the trouble.

Among the other newspapers in Chicago there are two Hearst newspapers, the Morning Examiner and the Evening American. These are the youngest newspapers in the city, and because they represent people and not because of motives of their own, they have proved to be the most powerful newspapers in the city. The Hearst newspapers worked for a direct primary law AND GOT THAT LAW IN SPITE OF CORPORATION OPPOSITION.

Under the primary law the Gas Trust and the other Trusts put up a candidate of their own, expecting that he would be nominated at the Democratic candidate and elected. The Hearst newspapers put up and supported as Democratic candidate at the primaries, Carter Harrison, a man opposed to the Gas Trust.

The corporations had laughed at the idea that the Hearst newspapers could actually put through a bill establishing the right of the people to nominate their own candidates at the primaries.

But the bill went through.

The corporations ridiculed the notion that the Hearst newspapers would succeed at the primaries and nominate a Democrat opposed to the trusts. But the Hearst newspapers did succeed. Harrison was nominated and the name of the Gas Trust candidate did not appear on the ballots.

The trusts and all of the powerful newspapers in Chicago, EXCEPT THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS—that is to say, the Tribune, the News, the Record-Herald, the Inter-Ocean and the other Chicago publications—attacked the anti-corporation Democrat, independently chosen at the primaries.

Those newspapers believed and said, and the gamblers believed and bet, that Harrison, although nominated, could not be elected.

But he was elected BY MORE THAN SEVENTEEN THOUSAND MAJORITY.

That is the story of ONE fight, one victory resulting from a combination of thinking newspapers telling the truth. Mr. Hearst went to Chicago several weeks before Election Day and personally carried on the fight to prove that the citizens have the right to nominate their own man at the primaries and the power to elect him.

Among other things, the old Chicago newspapers — they learned something on Tuesday—spoke of Mr. Hearst working for the cause of good government as a carpet-bagger and an interloper.

But they learned that they could not deceive the public. The voters, as it turned out, saw in Mr. Hearst not a carpet-bagger, but a man who has spent millions of dollars of his own money in Chicago PAYING THE HIGHEST WAGES—a man who incidentally compelled other newspapers to pay higher wages than they had been paying, and a man who, having made his newspapers successful, used them in the people's fight. Harrison was elected and the old style newspapers were defeated.

Readers of the Hearst newspapers everywhere will be glad to know of this Chicago victory and the circumstances attending it.

Mr. Harrison, the newly elected Mayor, and the various National leaders of the Democratic party, have been prompt and generous in their expressions of gratitude and appreciation of the work that Mr. Hearst and his newspapers have done for good government and for the Democratic party.

Mr. Hearst's satisfaction is based chiefly upon the fact that the election in Chicago represents ACTUALLY AN EXPRESSION OF THE PEOPLE'S WILL.

The people NOMINATED their own man, and defeated the corporation Democratic machine. They ELECTED their own man, and defeated the Republican machine, backed up by every newspaper in Chicago, except the Hearst newspapers.

It was truly a victory for the people, a victory for civic intelligence, and an individual and special victory for the great masses of readers everywhere that have intelligently read the Hearst newspapers and believed in their integrity.

Shall the Corporations Kill the Hoar Jury Trial Bill?

ROGER SHERMAN HOAR

Editor AMERICAN:

Your paper has been so progressive and helpful in advocating my bill to preserve the right of jury trial to persons accused of crime that I ask you to give some publicity to the eleventh-hour attempt to kill the bill, made by the attorneys for the big business magnates.

Before the present corporation lobby got busy on Beacon Hill, the Hoar bill was discussed, as all legislative matters should be, on its merits. On its merits, it was favorably reported by the joint committee on judiciary, passed the conservative Senate by a vote of 29 to 5, and was advanced in the House by a rising vote of 81 to 32, so overwhelming that its opponents did not ask a roll-call. When the corporation attorneys realized that the Legislature appreciated the true purport of the bill and was going to pass it in the interest of justice, then these attorneys began their issuance of pamphlets and a personal, persuasive lobbying of the legislators.

There is nothing to answer in their latest pamphlet. They have not met, nor even referred to, a single one of the arguments made by the supporters of my bill. There are, however, three points to which I wish to call attention. First, they are utilizing the present popular demand for fire protection as a means of stirring up prejudice against my bill. It is needless to say that this is an utterly unrelated subject. The people believe in fire protection. The big corporation attorneys, the tax dodgers and their attorneys and all of that ilk struggle against improving their buildings so as to save lives, and yet utilize this movement when they see in it a chance to kill another popular measure. The people will be fooled by this playing off of one popular measure against another.

Second—In their last pamphlet the corporation attorneys gave figures to show how few violations of injunctions there were in Massachusetts. Now that they have found that that made little impression, they have completely faced about and call attention to the expense that they claim the Hoar bill will cause in the great number of injunction trials.

Thirdly—These corporation attorneys, representing the same interests that are opposed to speedy trials, or any movement which will make things easier for the poor defendant, nevertheless urge against the Hoar bill that it will delay justice. Expediency is responsible for many strange changes of viewpoint.

The people ought to know what is being done publicly and secretly by the big corporations against the Hoar Jury Trial bill. I do not believe that the Legislature will go back on the people and on its previous overwhelming votes in favor of this bit of progressive legislation, simply at the behest of a number of eminent retrogressive corporation attorneys.

Probably a vote taken among these able legal gentlemen would show about 99 per cent. of them against reciprocity treaties, income taxes, direct nominations, popular election of United States Senators, initiative and referendum, municipal ownership, publicity for campaign expenses, investigation of anything by anybody. The only explanation is that the procession of progress has passed by these gentlemen, and that, however much the commercially and socially prosperous desire the old political doctrine of laissez faire to continue, it seems to me as a young observer that the American people are going to desire otherwise very speedily.

ROGER SHERMAN HOAR.
